What type of projects does AID support?

AID & Bhopal Victims

Kataila School Project: A school in Ghazipur, UP with six classrooms and 100 students did not have funds to support the teachers employed in the school. AID Bloomington has pledged $4000 to provide salary for 5 teachers and the principal for one year and build a toilet to improve sanitation.

Earlier, AID Bloomington has funded a literacy project in Chennai that helped 300 slum students. AID supports various projects like these in literacy, livelihood, women's empowerment, and environmental issues.

A chemical leak at Union Carbide's factory at Bhopal in 1984 killed over 25,000 and continues to affect 150,000. Dow Chemical, the present owner of Union Carbide, refuses to take responsibility for cleaning up the accident site and provide medical assistance to the victims.

AID Bloomington is active in the campaign to bring justice to the Bhopal victims by raising awareness on this issue and protesting against Dow Chemical.
