Where Does Our Food Come From?
Find out with a Farm Internship & learning Experience

Work and Learn about small-scale local market intensive farming and food distribution on Schacht Farm right here in Bloomington (www.schachtfarm.com)
Earn up to 6 Credits in Anthropology
(A406 Fieldwork in Anthropology)

Summer Session 1, 8 weeks May 7-June 28
6 weeks, May 7-June 14

Applications due by April 15, 2013

Students will keep a field journal, and write presentation about their experiences, while participating in all aspects of farm work. This internship counts towards the new Minor in Food Studies Anthropology. Hours are variable depending on the number of credits. Students must be able to handle their own transportation. You will learn about the following farm operations:

Pasture Broiler chickens
Pasture Hens and Hogs
CSA operation
farmer’s market sales

Applications available in the Anthropology department, SB130 and online at

Contact Prof. Richard Wilk for more information; wilkr@indiana.edu, 855-3901

Spaces are very limited, so apply soon.

Fees: students pay tuition and provide transportation to/from the farm.
APPLICATION FOR FARM INTERNSHIP & LEARNING EXPERIENCE, Anthropology 2013

Applications are due April 15. Please turn in, mail or email to wilkr@indiana.edu, Richard Wilk’s mailbox in the Anthropology Department, SB130.

Name:

Year of school and major areas of study:

Which summer session are you applying for? (circle)  8 weeks May 7-June 28  6 weeks, May 7-June 14

Your Email Address and phone number:

Have you worked on a farm before, or do you have gardening experience? If so, describe briefly.

Do you have medical conditions that might interfere with hard manual work in a farm environment? If so, describe briefly.

What are your learning goals for the summer internship? What kinds of things do you hope to learn?

List Anthropology or Food Studies courses you have completed.

Please give the name and contact information for one person we can contact for a personal recommendation.