STUDY FINNISH
The coolest language at IU!

Did you know that...

- Angry Birds are from Finland?
- Finland has the most heavy metal bands per capita than any other country in the world?
- Finns are the world’s biggest coffee drinkers?
- Finnish language (a.k.a suomi) is a non-Indo-European language belonging to the Uralic family?
- Finnish has a single word for “I wonder if I should run around aimlessly?” – juoksentelisinkohan?

Impress future employers with an exotic language in your resume!

If you want to unlock the mysteries of Finnish language and learn more about the denizens of the Arctic Circle, Indiana University’s Finnish studies program is the place for you! IU is one of the few U.S. institutions that offer three levels of Finnish annually. In addition to the language courses, we offer culture classes, and a lot fun and engaging extra-curricular programs. By enrolling in our language program, you get all the perks of studying in a small classroom setting. There are also plenty of summer courses and international study options because Finland needs you more than you need Finland! ;) Need more convincing?

THE BEST COUNTRY IN THE WORLD
If you want to be able to communicate with the citizens of the country that Newsweek declared the “best country in the world” in 2010, a country that probably holds the world record for hosting world championships (mobile phone throwing is a thing!), a country where a Burger King has an in-store sauna, sign up for Finnish courses at Indiana University!

TOLKIEN RECOMMENDS
“(Learning the Finnish language) was like discovering a complete wine cellar filled with bottles of an amazing wine of a kind of flavour never tasted before. It quite intoxicated me.” J.R.R. Tolkien, The Letters of J.R.R. Tolkien (1981)
