Cradle of the Zoroastrian and Manichaean religions, Persian has been second only to Arabic as the fountain of Islamic culture. Spiritual readers in America and the world over treasure the poems of Rumi, the great mystical poet of the Sufi tradition.

Whether architecture, music, novels, or painting: Persian language is the key to the beauties of medieval Iranian culture – and a vibrant modern culture as well.

Knowledge of Persian will help you learn Turkic, Arabic, Urdu, Hindi, and other languages and pursue a variety of exciting careers in government, international business, or education.

Knowledge of Persian will not only unlock the cultural riches of Afghanistan, as well as provide a fast-track to jobs and funded internships in government, the military, and non-profits researching the country and its inhabitants.

We maintain a close connection to the Center for Languages of the Central Asian Region (CeLCAR), America’s only Title VI Foreign Language Resource Center dedicated to the critical languages of Central Asia, Afghanistan and Pakistan.
