The Brazilian Studies Group and The Center for Latin American and Caribbean Studies invite you to the Horizons of Knowledge Lecture

American and British Authors in Nineteenth-century Brazil and Portugal

by

Juliana Maia de Queiroz, PhD
(Federal University of Pará, Brazil)

Thursday, April 14, 3pm
Sassafras Room
Indiana Memorial Union (IMU)

This lecture will focus on the presence of some novelists such as Fenimore Cooper (1789-1851), Harriet Beecher Stowe (1811-1896), Samuel Richardson (1689-1761), Jonathan Swift (1667-1745) and others in Portuguese and Brazilian book catalogues. Their novels provided Lusophone readers a window into American, Irish, and British worlds in the second half of the nineteenth century. Lecture in English.

Juliana Maia Queiroz is Associate Professor of Portuguese Literature at the University of Pará, Brazil. She is one of Brazil’s experts on the transatlantic exchange between Brazil and Portugal during the 19th century.
