1. Departmental Program Objectives

The instructional goal of the Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures (EALC) is to prepare our graduate students for a deeper understanding of East Asia through two mutually supportive and complementary approaches. One is to offer training in the study of the languages, literatures and civilizations of traditional and modern China, Japan, and Korea. The other is to provide integrated cross-disciplinary study of the region through a combination of language, disciplinary, and area studies. The Department intends to offer a broad range of programs in order to allow students maximum flexibility in pursuing academic interests which often cut across traditional disciplinary lines.

3. M.A. Degree Requirements

To earn any of the MA degrees offered by EALC, you will need to focus on two primary kinds of work:

- 30 hours of coursework
- Final Project: A thesis, final essay, or pedagogy project

All work for the MA degree must be completed within five years of your matriculation date.

A 3.0 GPA needs to be maintained in all coursework. Grades lower than a “C” cannot be counted toward your degree.

EALC course numbers and planning

Courses offered by the Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures are designated with the prefix “EALC-”, followed by an “E”, “C”, “J” or “K” and a three-digit course number. Generally, courses with an “E” prefix are considered to be Culture or Area Studies and are taught in English. Courses with a “C”, “J” or “K” are language classes and are taught almost entirely or completely in the target language and/or involve the use of materials in Chinese or Japanese language as their primary content. “C” indicates Chinese language, “J” Japanese language and “K” Korean language.

Examples:
EALC-E505: Topics in East Asian Studies
EALC-C533: Third Year Chinese 1
EALC-J533: Third Year Japanese 1
EALC-K301: Third Year Korean 1

Generally, MA students in the East Asian Studies program (including dual-degree students) are expected to complete most of their coursework in “E” prefixed courses, while students in the Chinese or Japanese programs are expected to complete most of their coursework in “C” or “J” prefixed courses, respectively. All students should read carefully the appropriate sections on degree requirements in this handbook and the Graduate School Bulletin for more detailed information on the degree requirements for their major.

In most cases, courses with a number of 500 or higher are graduate level coursework. When planning class schedules, students should plan to register for classes at the 500 level or above. Culture and area courses taught at the 100-400 levels are generally considered to be undergraduate courses and will not count toward an MA degree. In many cases, undergraduate and graduate sections of courses will be linked and taught together, and graduate students should be careful to register for the graduate sections for such courses. For example, EALC-E350 and EALC-E505 are both topics classes that are frequently taught with linked sections, but graduate students must register for E505 in order to receive credit for the class. Such linked courses are flagged in the schedule of classes. If a graduate section of the class is not listed, it is not available to graduate students.

There are important exceptions to the 500-level rule in the language course sequence. First and second year classes in Chinese, Japanese, and Korean are all designated as 100 and 200 level courses for both graduate and undergraduate students. When registering for first and second year language classes, graduate students need to be aware that: 1) credit hours for these courses will not be counted toward overall degree requirements, and 2) graduate students must choose the 2 credit graduate level section numbers.
At the third and fourth year level in Chinese and Japanese, 500 level course numbers exist, and graduate students must register for those course numbers in order to receive credit for the class. In the case of third year Korean, the course is 300 level for both graduate and undergraduate students and graduate students must be careful to register for the graduate section, which will count toward degree requirements in spite of its 300 level designation.

Please also note:

EALC-E505 is a variable topics course. Students can register for E505 multiple times, and as long as the topics are different for each time the class is taken, credit hours will be counted toward degree requirements.

EALC-E595 is an independent readings course. The course can also be used in conjunction with overseas study. Students interested in registering for E595 should review the registration details of the course on page 24 of this handbook.

Other independent study classes. There are course numbers available for students registering for credits while completing their final thesis, essay, or pedagogy project. Students should refer to the sections detailing degree requirements and degree completion in this handbook for more information on these classes. In all cases, students will be working with their advisor and committee while registered for these credits, and paperwork must be completed before students can register for these course numbers.

Courses offered in other Departments:

Cross-listed courses: Other departments sometimes offer courses that contain East Asian content, and these classes can be taken by EALC students to fulfill degree requirements. Cross-listed courses do not have independent EALC course numbers. A list of cross-listed courses is in the EALC section of the Graduate School Bulletin. Before enrolling in a class with another department, students should first check to see if the class is cross-listed with EALC.

Joint-listed courses: In some cases, courses may be listed with numbers in both EALC and another department (e.g., Religious Studies, Political Science, History). In order to avoid confusion at the time of graduation, it is important for EALC students to register for the EALC sections of these classes.

Other courses with East Asian content. Occasionally, courses will be offered in another department or school that may be appropriate for an EALC student’s degree requirements, but there is no official cross or joint-listing of the class with EALC. In these cases, students should consult with their advisor to get written permission before registering for these courses.

Transfer Credit

If you would like to transfer credit from another institution, you will need to file a "Request for Transfer of Graduate Credit" form (available from the EALC office). The form will be processed by the graduate secretary and sent to the College Graduate Office for final approval. Courses requested for transfer will be reviewed to assess content and contact hours. Not all transfer credit is automatically approved. MA students may transfer no more than 8 credit hours from an accredited institution. Courses taken more than five years before the date the MA is awarded cannot be transferred unless they have first been revalidated. For a detailed explanation of rules on transfer credit and revalidation, see the Graduate Credit section of the Graduate School Bulletin.

Credit by Petition

If you arrange with an EALC faculty member for his or her course to fulfill a requirement that it does not ordinarily fulfill, you must get confirmation in writing from the faculty member and the Director of Graduate Studies that this has been approved. An e-mail to the Graduate Secretary from the appropriate faculty member will be sufficient to establish that a non-typical course was approved.

Typical situations in which this sort of approval are necessary include having an “E” prefixed course count for “C” or “J” credit, or having EALC-E595 (Independent Readings) used as part of an overseas study program.

• M.A. in Chinese or Japanese

Students must complete a total of 30 credit hours in approved courses, including M.A. project hours.

1. At least 20 credit hours in coursework in the student’s major area

Ordinarily, these credit hours must be from among the courses listed under "Chinese" or "Japanese" (depending on the student's major) on the course list in the Bulletin and must include:
   - at least three classes at the 500 level or above
   - C511 (Chinese majors) or J511 (Japanese majors)

Courses listed under “Chinese” or “Japanese” in the Bulletin (i.e. courses with a “C” or “J” prefix) are courses that are taught in Chinese or Japanese and/or involve the use of materials in Chinese or Japanese language as their primary content. This distinguishes them from “E” prefixed courses, which are taught in English and use English language materials.

Note that C511 and J511 are not offered every year and students are advised to take these courses at the earliest opportunity for which they are prepared.

Although they may bear 500-level numbers, third- and fourth-year language courses do not count toward M.A. degree requirements for three 500-level courses. (Note, however, that third- and fourth-year language courses may count toward the language requirement; see #2 below.)

Independent Study/Overseas Study credits:
   - E595 courses should be taken on the Bloomington campus only when the student can find no regularly scheduled classes to meet degree requirements.
   - Before registering for E595, students must meet with the professor they intend to work with and complete the independent study form. See page 24 of this handbook for more details.
   - Except for overseas study credits, normally a maximum of 3 credit hours of E595 may be counted toward the degree.
   - Overseas study credits will sometimes be listed as E595 (Independent Study), and can be counted toward the 500 level course requirement.

2. Completion of the fourth-year level or equivalent in the student's major language

Students must show proficiency in their major language by completing EALC-C544 (Chinese majors) or EALC-J544 (Japanese majors) with a grade of C or higher, or by passing the placement/proficiency test at an equivalent level or higher.

For some areas of research, proficiency in a classical East Asian language, involving one or more years of coursework, may be necessary. Specific requirements will be determined in consultation with the Director of Graduate Studies and the student’s Advisor according to departmental guidelines.
East Asian language courses at third-year and higher levels may be counted toward the total of 30 credits for the degree. Preparatory (100 – 200 level) language courses cannot be counted toward total credit hours.

Students planning to apply to Ph.D. programs in fields that typically require a second East Asian language are strongly encouraged to begin such language study during M.A. coursework.

If you are a native speaker of the language of your major, a memo certifying your language competence must be filed by the Language Program Coordinator of the appropriate program and added to your department file. This should be done during your first semester in the EALC MA program.

If you believe you have achieved the required level of proficiency through coursework taken elsewhere, you need to certify your proficiency by taking the appropriate exam offered in August and January by the Language Program Coordinator.

3. Electives

If a student needs additional coursework after the 20 hours of coursework in the major as well as the language requirements are completed, the student may take additional EALC credits to reach the total of 30 credit hours. This can include “E” prefixed courses, independent study classes, or thesis/final essay credits. In some cases, the remaining credit hours may be taken from other departments at the discretion of the Director of Graduate Studies and the student’s advisor.

4. Project credits

The student may choose to register for thesis or essay credits. No more than 4 credits can count toward the 30 credit total. Information on the distinction between a thesis and an essay project appears on page 15 of this handbook.

Students should complete the appropriate thesis or essay proposal form and obtain signatures of three committee members as soon as they have developed an appropriate project plan and before undertaking extensive work.

The final project is required of all M.A. students, but registering for project credits is optional. Students completing a Master’s thesis may register for C701 or J701. Students completing a final Essay may register for E597. A student must complete the appropriate thesis or essay approval form prior to registering for these credits. The approval form must include a thesis or essay proposal, and the signatures of all committee members.

- M.A. in Chinese or Japanese - Language Pedagogy Track

Students must complete a total of 30 credit hours in approved courses, including M.A. project hours.

1. At least 20 credit hours in coursework in the student’s major area

Ordinarily, these credit hours must be from among the courses listed under "Chinese" or "Japanese" (depending on the student's major) on the course list in the Bulletin and must include:

For Chinese Majors:
C535, C525, C527, and C506 or C507 (C520 is strongly recommended.)

For Japanese majors
J520, J525, J527, and J506 or J507
The remaining credit hours may be taken from East Asian culture courses, or courses in Education (e.g. L520 and L630), Linguistics (e.g. L503), TESOL/Applied Linguistics (e.g. T532 and T550), in consultation with the student’s advisor.

Independent Study/Overseas Study credits:
  o E595 courses should be taken on the Bloomington campus only when the student can find no regularly scheduled classes to meet degree requirements.
  o Before registering for E595, students must meet with the professor they intend to work with and complete the independent study form. See page 24 of this handbook for more details.
  o Except for overseas study credits, normally a maximum of 3 credit hours of E595 may be counted toward the degree.
  o Overseas study credits will sometimes be listed as E595 (Independent Study), and can be counted toward the 500 level course requirement.

2. Completion of the fourth-year level or equivalent in the student's major language

Students must show proficiency in their major language by completing EALC-C544 (Chinese majors) or EALC-J544 (Japanese majors) with a grade of C or higher, or by passing the placement/proficiency test at an equivalent level or higher.

Language courses at the third-year level and above of the major language may be counted toward the total of 30 credits for the degree. Preparatory (100 – 200 level) language courses cannot be counted toward total credit hours.

If you are a native speaker of the language of your major, a memo certifying your language competence must be filed by the Language Program Coordinator of the appropriate program and added to your department file. This should be done during your first semester in the EALC M.A. program.

If you believe you have achieved the required level of proficiency through coursework taken elsewhere, you need to certify your proficiency by taking the appropriate exam offered in August and January by the faculty coordinator of each language program.

3. Pedagogy project credits

The pedagogy project is required of all students in the pedagogy track, but registering for pedagogy project credits is optional. Students completing the pedagogy project may register for EALC-C598 or EALC-J598. A student must complete the project approval form prior to registering for these credits. The approval form must include a project proposal, and the signatures of all committee members.

No more than 4 credits can count toward the 30 credit total.

• M.A. in Chinese: Chinese Flagship Track

Students must complete a minimum of 30 credit hours, including M.A. project hours, in approved courses.

1. At least 20 hours of Chinese (C-prefixed) courses
    Ordinarily, at least 20 of these credit hours, not counting thesis hours, must be from among the courses listed under “Chinese” in the Graduate School Bulletin.
During Year 1, students must complete:

- Coursework totaling 18 - 24 credit hours including:
  - C557 (Chinese in the Humanities) and/or
  - C567 (Chinese in the Social Sciences).

These courses are to be taken in combination with the English-language culture content courses (e.g. in sociology, anthropology, history, etc.) with which they are paired during the semester in question.

During Year 2, students must complete:

- A four-month internship in China (listed as EALC-C599)
- One semester of coursework at Nanjing University in China

Ordinarily, Nanjing coursework will include:
- one course in Chinese writing and rhetoric (credited as C550)
- one elective course (credited as C505)

It is assumed that students will enroll for M.A. project hours (in most cases, EALC-C597) during their internship in preparation for completion of their final project by the end of the second year.

2. Completion of five years of Chinese language, or the equivalent, as determined by examination

Students must show proficiency in Chinese by completing six hours of EALC-C557 and/or C567.

Chinese language courses at the 300 level and above may be counted toward the 30 hours required for the degree. Preparatory (100 - 200 level) language courses cannot be counted toward total credit hours.

If you believe you have achieved the required level of proficiency through coursework taken elsewhere, you need to certify your proficiency by taking the appropriate exam offered in August or January by the faculty coordinator of each language program.

3. Project

Students must complete a major essay (40-50 pages) in their area of interest demonstrating the ability to master, use, and critically evaluate a body of scholarly literature in the students’ field and should include use of at least some Chinese-language sources. Flagship students must accompany their essay with a précis (10 pages) in Chinese. This work will be evaluated by a committee that will consist of two disciplinary experts and one faculty member whose expertise is in modern Chinese instruction.

- M.A. in East Asian Studies

Students must complete a total of 30 credit hours in approved courses, including M.A. project hours.

1. 20 hours of EALC Culture and Area courses

Ordinarily, at least 20 of these credit hours must be from among the courses listed under "Culture and Area Courses" in the Graduate Student Bulletin. (i.e. courses with an “E” prefix)

At least three courses must be at the 500 level or above.

Third and fourth-year language courses do not count toward the required three 500-level courses.

Independent Study/Overseas Study credits:
- E595 courses should be taken on the Bloomington campus only when the student can find no regularly scheduled classes to meet degree requirements.
- Before registering for E595, students must meet with the professor they intend to work with and complete the independent study form. See page 24 of this handbook for more details.
- Except for overseas study credits, normally a maximum of 3 credit hours of E595 may be counted toward the degree.
Overseas study credits will sometimes be listed as E595 (Independent Study), and can be counted toward the 500 level course requirement.

Students may also take courses offered by other departments, specifically those listed in the Bulletin at the end of the East Asian course listings, which have been approved because of their relevance to East Asian studies and/or their East Asian content.

2. Completion of three years of Chinese, Japanese, or Korean language, or the equivalent, as determined by examination

Students must show proficiency in their major language by completing either EALC-C534, EALC-J534, or EALC-K302, with a grade of C or higher, or by passing the placement/proficiency test at an equivalent level or higher.

Language courses at the third-year level and above may be counted toward the 30 hours required for the degree. Preparatory (100 – 200 level) language courses cannot be counted toward total credit hours. Students planning to apply to a Ph.D. program in fields that typically require a second East Asian language are strongly encouraged to begin language work during the M.A. program.

If you are a native speaker of the language of your major, a memo certifying your language competence must be filed by the Language Program Coordinator of the appropriate program and added to your department file. This should be done during your first semester in the EALC M.A. program.

If you believe you have achieved the required level of proficiency through coursework taken elsewhere, you need to certify your proficiency by taking the appropriate exam offered in August or January by the faculty coordinator of each language program.

3. Electives

If a student needs additional coursework after the 20 hours of coursework in the major, and the language requirements are completed, the student may take additional EALC credits to reach the total of 30 credit hours. This can include “E” prefixed courses, independent study classes, or thesis/final essay credits. In some cases, the remaining credit hours may be taken from other departments at the discretion of the Director of Graduate Studies and the student’s advisor.

4. Project credits

The student may choose to register for thesis or essay credits. No more than 4 credits can count toward the 30 credit total. Information on the distinction between a thesis and an essay project, appears on page 15 of this handbook.

The final project is required of all MA students, but registering for project credits is optional. Students completing a Master’s thesis may register for E700. Students completing a Master’s essay may register for E597. A student must complete the appropriate thesis or essay approval form prior to registering for these credits. The approval form must include a thesis or essay proposal, and the signatures of all committee members.

M.A. in East Asian Studies/M.B.A. Dual Degree

After being admitted to both the M.B.A. program in the IU Kelley School of Business and the M.A. in East Asian Studies, students must complete requirements for both degrees. Students have a total of 6 years to complete the requirements for both degrees.
1. EALC course requirements

30 credit hours, normally including:
- three social science courses
- two history courses
- one humanities course

Ordinarily, at least 18 of these credit hours must be from among the courses listed under "Culture and Area Courses" in the EALC section of the Bulletin. (i.e., courses with an “E” prefix)

At least three courses must be at the 500 level or above.

Third and fourth-year language courses do not count toward the required three 500-level courses.

Independent Study/Overseas Study credits:
- E595 courses taken on the Bloomington campus should only be taken when the student can find no regularly scheduled classes to meet degree requirements.
- Before registering for E595, students must meet with the professor they intend to work with and complete the independent study form. See page 24 of this handbook for more details.
- Except for overseas study credits, normally a maximum of 3 credit hours of E595 may be counted toward the degree.
- Overseas study credits will sometimes be listed as E595 (Independent Study), and can be counted toward the 500 level course requirement.

With the approval of the Director of Graduate Studies, up to 6 of the required 30 credits may be classes offered in the School of Business.

2. M.B.A. Course Requirements

Required and elective courses to total 40.5 credit hours of graduate course work. The possibilities of course combinations are many and will depend on your specific career path.

For details, contact the M.B.A. program office, 812-855-8006.

3. Completion of three years of Chinese, Japanese, or Korean language, or the equivalent, as determined by examination

Students must show proficiency in their major language by completing either EALC-C534, EALC-J534, or EALC-K302, with a grade of C or higher, or by passing the placement/proficiency test at an equivalent level or higher.

Language courses at the 300 level and above may be counted toward the degree.

4. Project

Jointly supervised by EALC and Business faculty, the student may choose either a thesis or an essay, combining expertise in East Asian studies and business. Information on the distinction between a thesis and an essay project appears on page 15 of this handbook.

The final project is required of all MA students, but registering for project credits is optional. Students completing a Master’s thesis may register for E700. Students completing a Master’s essay may register for E597. A student must complete the appropriate thesis or essay approval form prior to registering for these credits. The approval form must include a thesis or essay proposal, and the signatures of all committee members.

Up to 3 credits in project hours may be counted toward the degree.
M.A. in East Asian Studies/M.P.A. Joint degree

After being admitted to both the M.P.A. program in the IU School of Public and Environmental Affairs, and the M.A. in East Asian Studies, students must complete both degrees. Students have a total of 6 years to complete the requirements for both degrees.

1. EALC course requirements

A total of 24 credit hours, normally including
- three social science courses
- two history courses
- one humanities course

Ordinarily, at least 18 of these credit hours must be from among the courses listed under "Culture and Area Courses" in the EALC section of the Bulletin.

At least three courses must be at the 500 level or above.

Third and fourth-year language courses do not count toward the required three 500-level courses.

Independent Study/Overseas Study credits:
- E595 courses taken on the Bloomington campus should only be taken when the student can find no regularly scheduled classes to meet degree requirements.
- Before registering for E595, students must meet with the professor they intend to work with and complete the independent study form. See page 24 of this handbook for more details.
- Except for overseas study credits, normally a maximum of 3 credit hours of E595 may be counted toward the degree.
  Overseas study credits will sometimes be listed as E595 (Independent Study), and can be counted toward the 500 level course requirement.

2. SPEA course requirements

A total of 36 credit hours of graduate course work to be distributed as follows:
- professional development practicum courses
- courses in the SPEA core
- specialized concentration course, which may include SPEA, EALC, and other courses, to be selected in consultation with a SPEA advisor.

For details, contact the SPEA graduate student services office, SPEA 260, 812-855-9485.

3. Completion of three years of Chinese, Japanese, or Korean language, or the equivalent, as determined by examination

Students will show proficiency in their major language by completing either EALC-C534, EALC-J534, or EALC-K302, with a grade of C or higher, or by passing the placement/proficiency test at an equivalent level or higher.

Language courses at the 300 level and above may be counted toward the degree.

4. Project

Jointly supervised by EALC and SPEA faculty, the student may choose either a thesis or an essay, combining expertise in East Asian studies and public affairs. Information on the distinction between a thesis and an essay project, appears on page 15 of this handbook.
The final project is required of all MA students, but registering for project credits is optional. Students completing a Master’s thesis may register for E700. Students completing a Master’s essay may register for E597. A student must complete the appropriate thesis or essay approval form prior to registering for these credits. The approval form must include a thesis or essay proposal, and the signatures of all committee members.

Up to 3 credit credits in project hours may be counted toward the degree.

M.A. Projects – All Majors

All M.A. students must complete a final project: it can be either a formal thesis, an essay, or a pedagogy project. As you begin your Master's program, you should bear in mind the M.A. project requirement and start thinking about possible topics. Typically, this project will grow out of work you do for a course, but it will not be limited to this.

Your final project is expected to be a thoughtful, thoroughly researched and carefully written academic work. You will need to work closely with your faculty committee at all phases of your project. The final project is not intended to be quickly started and completed during the last few weeks of your MA program, but instead should be integrated into your program beginning at least in the third semester of your studies.

Once you have identified a topic that interests you, you will need to establish a committee, consisting of an advisor and two additional readers, to supervise your work. The third reader need not be a member of the EALC faculty; depending on the nature of your topic, you may want to consider faculty in other departments. Your primary advisor and the Director of Graduate Studies can assist you in the formation of this committee.

Some potential committee members may require that you prepare a proposal of some kind before they agree to be on your committee. Others will be willing to sign on to your committee with only a general idea of your topic and then work with you to prepare your formal proposal. Therefore, please expect to move forward with a two-step proposal writing process: First, approach potential committee members with at least a one-page initial proposal. Following the agreement of all committee members to participate, proceed to formal proposal writing.

Before beginning work on the project, you must get approval for the project. To do so, you need to consult with your committee and prepare a proposal statement outlining the nature of the proposed project. The exact length and level of detail for your proposal will be determined by your advisor, but the formal proposal should be at least 1000 words. Once the proposal is accepted by your committee, complete the appropriate proposal form (available on the EALC Grad Student resources page or from the EALC office) and have your committee members sign the form. Return the signed form along with your proposal to the EALC office. The Director of Graduate Studies or department Chair will review your proposal.

As you work on your project, provide your committee with drafts on a regular schedule. Most readers will expect to comment on a work-in-progress before seeing a final draft. Please keep in mind that just as your readers need to respond in a timely way to your drafts, you need to share your work in a way that is considerate of the many demands on their professional lives. When you are nearing completion of your project, be sure that all of your committee members agree on the time frame needed to complete the final review in time for your graduation. Plan to allow at least 2 months for final evaluation by your committee.
THE MASTER'S THESIS

The thesis option is strongly recommended for all students who intend to go on to a Ph.D. program at any point. It is intended to demonstrate that you possess the training and skills necessary for further advanced work. The thesis, or portions of it, is often used as part of a student’s application to a Ph.D. program. An M.A. thesis is normally 50–80 pages in length, and is expected to demonstrate the student's skills in the use of primary sources in the major language and in scholarly research.

A translation of a text is not acceptable as a thesis unless it is accompanied by a substantial critical essay. If a translation is to serve as part of the thesis, the amount and nature of the translation work will be determined in consultation with the thesis committee.

After completing the thesis, prepare a Thesis Acceptance page and obtain original signatures from all committee members. You should refer to Preparing Theses and Dissertations in the Graduate Bulletin for instructions on formatting and submitting your thesis online.

You must submit your thesis online through ProQuest by the 15th of the month you intend to graduate. If any formatting changes are required, you will be contacted. Your signed Thesis Acceptance page and final formatted version of the thesis must be submitted by the 27th of the same month. If you do not meet these deadlines, the awarding of your degree will be postponed. You will also need to provide EALC with a spiral-bound hardcopy of your thesis.

Note: A blank Thesis Acceptance page must be included at the beginning of the thesis and a vita at the end – see Preparing Theses and Dissertations. Your thesis will not be accepted by the University Graduate School if these guidelines are not met.

THE MASTER’S ESSAY

The Master’s Essay is a less formal option, designed for students who intend the M.A. to be their terminal degree. An M.A. essay is normally 40–50 pages in length, and is expected to demonstrate the ability to master, use, and critically evaluate a body of scholarly literature in the student’s field.

After completing the essay, prepare an acceptance (signature) page and obtain original signatures from all committee members. (See Preparing Theses and Dissertations.) If you are completing a Master’s Essay, you are not required to submit your essay online, but a spiral bound printed copy of your project must be given to EALC before your graduation can be confirmed.

THE PEDAGOGY PROJECT

The pedagogy project is the requirement specific to students in the language pedagogy track in Chinese or Japanese. The project may take a variety of forms, ranging from an essay involving empirical study of methodological/language acquisition issues to development of concrete teaching tools with pedagogical analyses.

After completing the pedagogy project, prepare an acceptance (signature) page and obtain original signatures from all committee members. (See Preparing Theses and Dissertations.) If you are completing a pedagogy project, you are not required to submit your essay online, but a spiral bound printed copy of your project must be given to EALC before your graduation can be confirmed.
M.A. Timeline

Keeping in mind that most M.A. students plan to finish their coursework in about 2 years, the following illustrates a general timeline for completing the M.A.

<thead>
<tr>
<th>1st Semester</th>
<th>- Complete coursework chosen in consultation with the DGS and your academic advisor</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2nd Semester and 2nd Summer</td>
<td>- Complete coursework chosen in consultation with your academic advisor. - Begin to think about topics for M.A. thesis, essay, or pedagogy project and discuss your work with possible committee members.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3rd + semesters</td>
<td>- Complete coursework chosen in consultation with your academic advisor. - Form advisory committee for thesis/essay/project - File thesis or project proposal with Graduate Secretary - Best case, begin writing thesis/essay/project</td>

M.A. Completion and Graduation Procedures

WITH THESIS

1. Identify a research topic and develop research plan in consultation with your advisor. Write a one-page research proposal to present to potential committee members.

2. Once a committee is formed, submit a proposal to your committee; when it is approved, complete an EALC MA Thesis Proposal/Approval form and have your committee members sign it. This form must be completed and signed regardless of whether you intend to register for thesis credits. You will not be allowed to register for thesis credits without it.

3. With the approval of your committee and the Director of Graduate Studies, proceed with research and writing; submit drafts to your committee regularly. If you are done with your other coursework and have fulfilled the M.A. total credit hour requirements, enrollment is not necessary during this time, but you are required to stay in contact with your committee.

4. Before completing plans for your thesis, check with your advisor and the Graduate Secretary to be certain that all of your coursework requirements have been met. Check with the Graduate Secretary to be sure all “Incomplete” grades on your record have been removed.
5. At least 60 days before expected completion, and preferably at the beginning of the semester you wish to graduate, apply online for graduation in OneStart. (My Zone -> University Graduate School Forms -> Master’s Application for Graduation).

6. Consult the Preparing Theses and Dissertations website for details on the formatting of your thesis.

7. Submit final draft of the thesis to readers, with a page for faculty signatures.

8. Once your committee has approved your thesis, collect their signatures on the signature page.

9. Make sure that your advisor reports the final letter grade for your thesis to the Graduate Secretary.

10. By the 15th of the month you plan to graduate, submit your thesis electronically to ProQuest. You will be advised of any necessary formatting changes within one week.

11. The final copy of your approved thesis and your signed Thesis Approval page must be turned in to the Graduate School by the 27th of the month you plan to graduate.

12. Submit a spiral-bound hardcopy of your thesis to the EALC office.

13. Make sure that the Office of the Registrar has your correct address information on file (check listing on OneStart).

14. Once all steps on this list are completed, the University Graduate School will confer your degree.

WITH ESSAY OR PEDAGOGY PROJECT

1. Identify a research topic and committee; develop research plan. Write a one-page research proposal to present to potential committee members.

2. Before beginning your essay or project, submit a proposal to your committee and, when it is approved, complete an EALC MA Essay Proposal form or EALC MA Pedagogy Project Proposal form and have your committee members sign it. This form must be completed and signed regardless of whether you intend to register for essay or project credits, but you will not be allowed to register for these credits without it.

3. With the approval of your committee and the Director of Graduate Studies, proceed with research and writing; submit drafts regularly. Enrollment is not necessary during this time, but stay in contact with your committee.

4. Before completing your essay or project, check with your advisor and the Graduate Secretary to be certain that all of your coursework requirements have been met. Check with the Graduate Secretary to be sure all incomplete grades on your record have been removed.

5. At least 60 days before expected completion, and preferably at the beginning of the semester you wish to graduate, apply online for graduation in OneStart. (My Zone -> University Graduate School Forms -> Master’s Application for Graduation).

6. Submit final draft of the essay or project to your readers.

7. When you have all approvals, your committee must sign an approval/signature page, which will be included in the hard copy of your project that is turned in to EALC.
8. Once your committee has approved your essay or project, collect their signatures.

9. Make sure that your advisor reports the final letter grade for your essay or project to the Graduate Secretary.

10. Submit a spiral-bound hard copy of your essay to the Graduate Secretary. This copy will be kept by EALC.

11. Make sure that the Office of the Registrar has your correct address information on file (check listing on OneStart).

12. Once all steps on this list are completed, the University Graduate School will confer your degree.
4. Advising & Support

Academic Advising

As an M.A. student, your academic advising will occur in several regular steps along the way toward anticipated completion of your degree. During your first semester, in consultation with the Director of Graduate Studies, you will be assigned an academic advisor. Your academic interests and those of the faculty are taken into consideration when these assignments are made. You should expect your advisor to help you clarify the degree requirements as specified in the Bulletin, make course selections, address any issues related to credit transfer, ensure that your file accurately documents your progress toward your degree, and discuss other academic concerns (such as overseas studies programs).

The on-going and regular process of student advising and reviews consists of the following procedures:

1) Semester Registration and Advising Meetings
   These meetings will take place twice per academic year, once in late fall in preparation for spring semester and once in late spring in preparation for the following fall semester. It is your responsibility to make this meeting, and if you do not complete the meeting you will be blocked from registering for the following semester’s classes. You must bring your “Semester Registration & Advising Form” to your semester advising meeting with your faculty advisor. During this meeting, your faculty advisor will go over your intended course schedule for the next semester, filling out the “Semester Registration & Advising Form” to evaluate your progress toward the degree requirements. He or she will also make a general evaluation of your progress and any problem issues in your progress toward degree completion. You must return this form to the graduate secretary prior to registration.

2) Annual Review of Students
   This is completed once a year during the middle of the Spring semester and requires the participation of the faculty advisor, the student, and the DGS. Please see the section below for full explanation of procedures.

Normally, after completion of your second semester, and no later than the end of your third semester, in consultation with your academic advisor, you will identify a project topic and form an M.A. thesis/essay/pedagogy project committee. This committee will consist of a thesis or project chair and two additional faculty members, who will serve as thesis or project readers. Your committee chair will act as your primary academic advisor. Committee members will be available to help you develop a viable research question, supervise your research, read and respond to your drafts, and, if it is satisfactory, sign off on your thesis, essay, or pedagogy project when it is complete.

Annual Review of Students

Faculty advisors and the DGS will annually review the progress toward completion of the degree of each EALC graduate student.

- Faculty Review Component of the Annual Review

The faculty advisor will submit an annual review of student progress toward the degree and, in coordination with the DGS, provide feedback and guidance to each student. In doing these reviews, advisors will evaluate all aspects of student performance in relation to the degree requirements, and they will also take into account the Student Self-Evaluation report (see below) of each student. This annual review will be submitted by the faculty advisor to the DGS mid-Spring semester.
• Student Self-Evaluation Component of Annual Review

Annual self evaluations are required for all EALC graduate students as part of the Annual Review process, including students who are studying abroad or are in the final stages of completing their M.A. projects.

Each year in late February, the DGS and the Graduate Secretary send out a notice by email and U.S. mail to all graduate students announcing the timeframe for completion of self-evaluations. Self-evaluations are generally due the week prior to Spring Break.

There is a form with questions intended to guide your evaluation. The evaluation should be a brief (1-2 paragraph) statement reporting on course requirements you have fulfilled, plans for future coursework, completion of incomplete courses, composition of advisory committee and/or thesis committee, plans for your M.A. project.

Once you have completed the evaluation, send an electronic copy to your academic advisor, the DGS, and the Graduate Secretary, and present a signed hard copy to Graduate Secretary.

Students who fail to turn in evaluations or to meet the deadlines set for their stage of the degree will be given a formal written warning that the next step is academic probation.

• Results of the Annual Review Process

No problems with progress:

You will receive a letter from the DGS by the beginning of April to inform that you are on the right track in your academic progress.

Problem cases:

Problem situations would include outstanding Incompletes, too many dropped courses, marginal or poor grades, failure to make progress on a thesis/essay/pedagogy project, and self-evaluations that do not seem to be realistic assessments.

If any of these problems is identified, your evaluation will be brought before the Graduate Committee. The Committee will make a recommendation as to whether or not a formal warning is necessary. If your progress is a cause for concern, you will receive notice from the DGS and your academic advisor. A first warning will be received in late March or early April.

• Student and Departmental Follow Up for Problem Cases

You should take the comments and suggestions in your follow-up letter seriously, and act on them with urgency. If your file has been identified as problematic, it is your responsibility to work with your advisor and the DGS to address any problems.

If you fail to address the problems laid out in your letter, you can be placed on academic probation as early as May of the same year or, as late as January of the next year if a longer timeframe is warranted. It is important to keep in close contact with your academic advisor and make steady progress in problem areas to avoid academic probation.

If the problems have not been addressed within one year, you will be dismissed from the graduate program.
Faculty and Staff Support

Although you are officially responsible for your progress toward the degree, a number of people in our department are available to support your work.

In addition to your academic advisor and committee, you may also turn to the following people for particular kinds of assistance.

- Director of Graduate Studies (DGS)
  Throughout your work in EALC, the DGS will be available to work with you on issues related to your academic progress. Although your first step in seeking advice should be to speak with your faculty advisor, you should not hesitate to consult the DGS as you select a research topic or identify faculty to work with you on a thesis, essay or pedagogy project.

  In addition to serving as a consultant, the DGS is also the official agent of the department for much of IU and EALC paperwork (e.g. approving independent readings courses, requesting a change in your official academic objective, signing all official forms pertaining to EALC graduate degrees).

- Graduate Secretary
  You will work with the EALC Graduate Secretary when you need to obtain and complete forms related to your degree, inquire about your records, and follow up on procedures related to your degree.

- Department Chair
  Routine issues are not typically handled by the Chair; however, if you experience problems which have not satisfactorily been resolved by talking with appropriate faculty members, your own academic advisor, or the DGS, you may take up your concerns with the Chair.

- EALC Reference Librarian
  As you clarify your academic interests and begin your graduate research projects, you are encouraged to consult the EALC reference librarian, Wen-ling Liu, to take advantage of her expertise. Her office is located on the 8th Floor of the Main Library, by the East Asian Collection, in Room E860.

5. Registering for Classes

Registration Procedures

When you arrive at IU, a degree-planning chart will be started for you, and it will be kept on file with the EALC Graduate Secretary. The purpose of the planning chart is to give you and your academic advisor a point of reference to see what classes you have taken and to help in planning for upcoming semesters. It must be completed and signed by your advisor before you will be able to register for classes each semester.

Each semester, before you register for classes for the upcoming semester, you must meet with your academic advisor to discuss the courses that you plan to take. Before your meeting, you should pick up your planning chart from the Graduate Secretary and take it to the meeting. Once your academic advisor has signed off on your class choices, return the form to the Graduate Secretary, and she will clear you to register on OneStart. You will not be able to register without clearance from the Graduate Secretary, and she cannot clear you to register without the signed form from your advisor.

Detailed instructions for online registration through OneStart can be found on the Registrar’s website at: http://registrar.indiana.edu/~registra/stu_registration.shtml.

Graduate students are not required to complete registration before the term begins. However, to allow departmental planning and to ensure that any issues of course selection or enrollment are handled in a timely way, EALC requires graduate students to meet with their academic advisors and complete a registration plan in advance.

In 2012-13, the deadlines for course planning forms to be approved and submitted to the Graduate Secretary are: November 30 (for Spring 2013); April 15 (for Fall 2012).

If you are planning to register for any Independent Study courses or thesis/project hours, there is extra paperwork required. (See below.)

Documentation

Establish a paper trail. It is your responsibility to obtain written documentation of any requirements you have met that cannot be readily identified by your transcript.

For example, if you arrange with an EALC faculty member for his or her course to fulfill a requirement that it does not ordinarily fulfill, you should make sure that you get confirmation in writing from the faculty member and the Director of Graduate Studies that this has been approved. Frequently, you may find that the easiest way to ensure that you have documentation is simply to send a follow-up e-mail with appropriate detail to the faculty member you are working with, asking him or her to forward the message with confirmation to the EALC Graduate Secretary. Again, it is your responsibility to follow up later to see that the confirmation has arrived.

Be sure to establish this documentation in a timely way. Faculty leave town on sabbatical and staff members change jobs. By taking the initiative on these kinds of matters, your file will make clear where you stand in relation to the requirements of your degree. It can be very difficult to obtain such documentation even a semester after the agreement was made. It is imperative that you follow up with the faculty member you are working with as soon as possible.
Independent Study Courses

If you choose to register for Independent Readings (EALC-E595) or any other independent study course, including pedagogy practicum hours (C/J 527), you will first need to identify a faculty member who would work with you for the course. Once you have spoken to the faculty member and you have both agreed on the details of the course, you will need to fill out the authorization form available from the Graduate Secretary. The form must be signed by you and the instructor and returned to the Graduate Secretary, who will subsequently pass it along to the DGS for departmental approval. Once the DGS signs off on the form, the Graduate Secretary can then authorize you to register for the course.

Thesis, Essay, or Project Hours

Students may apply up to 4 hours of thesis, essay, or pedagogy project hours toward their degree. In order to register for those hours, the student will first need to have a thesis, essay, or pedagogy project committee, and have filled out the appropriate proposal form. This form is available from the Graduate Secretary. Once the proposal form has been signed by all members of the committee and the Director of Graduate Studies, the Graduate Secretary can authorize you to register for thesis, essay, or pedagogy project hours.

Course Numbers for final project hours:

MA Thesis hours:
MA in Chinese: Register for EALC-C701
MA in Japanese: Register for EALC-J801
MA in East Asian Studies: Register for EALC-E700

MA Essay hours:
All majors register for EALC-E597

Language Pedagogy Project hours:
MA in Chinese Pedagogy register for EALC-C598, MA in Japanese Pedagogy register for EALC-J598
6. Living & Studying Away from Bloomington

Whether you are studying overseas or just leaving Bloomington while you write your thesis, it is important to stay in contact with the department while you are away. Be sure to update your contact information in OneStart and let EALC know your contact information before you leave.

While you are away from campus, you will still be required to submit the annual self-evaluations. Note that the five-year limit on enrollment as an M.A. student includes time spent off campus.

It is very important to check your IU e-mail account while you are away. As long as you are registered for classes at IU, your IU e-mail account will remain active. If you will be away without being registered and need to maintain your IU e-mail, contact the Graduate Secretary.

Overseas Study Options

IU Affiliated Language Programs

The Inter-University programs in Chinese and Japanese language are very highly regarded intensive language programs. If you are considering application, you should first discuss your plans with the EALC faculty coordinator listed below for the appropriate program. Students who complete these programs are expected to emerge with very high proficiency levels in the target language. When applying to the program, students are also encouraged to apply for external funding options to help finance their participation. Applications for admission to the Inter-University programs must be made in the fall of the year prior to enrollment.

Students in these programs are able to register for IU overseas study credit, which in most cases can be transferred to graduate credit after the program is completed. Students are encouraged to register for the overseas studies credit, because it will keep you in good standing in terms of student loans and IU computer accounts, among others. Students should contact Susan Carty (scarty@indiana.edu) in the Office of Overseas Studies for permission to register for overseas study credits.

At the end of the program, students will be given a written statement indicating successful completion of the program. You must request that the Inter-University program send a copy to the EALC Director of Graduate Studies so that there will be an official record of your participation in the program. Students should also get in touch with the faculty coordinators listed below for getting their overseas study credit transferred to graduate credit that can be applied to degree requirements. In some cases, additional materials may need to be shown. Students are responsible for following up on credit transfers. It will not happen automatically!

IU Affiliated Exchange Programs

IU maintains exchange agreements with a few universities in China and Korea, and students with advanced language skills are encouraged to apply for these programs. If students are accepted, the host university will cover most or all costs associated with study, and room and board as well as travel stipends are available from IU. Applications are made through the Office of the Vice President for International Affairs (OVPIA). Contact Shawn Reynolds at (shreynol@indiana.edu) for more information.

In most cases, these exchange programs will not result in IU graduate credit, but often certain degree requirements can be waived when the program is completed successfully. Students should contact the Director of Graduate Studies for more information before and after their program.

For 2011-2012, the following Universities have exchange agreements with IU. For more information, please see the program links below.

Non-IU programs

There are many study abroad opportunities available that are not directly associated with IU, and students are encouraged to research other options. Students should talk to their academic advisor, the Director of Graduate Studies and their fellow students to get ideas for other programs that might be appropriate. Students should also look into outside funding sources.

In most cases, completing a year or a semester at a non-IU affiliated school will not result in graduate credit. However, if students can produce documentation of their studies, some degree requirements might be able to be waived. Students should discuss this possibility with their academic advisor or the Director of Graduate Studies before and after the program.

Advanced Research

In consultation with their advisors, many students will choose to live abroad while completing research and writing on their thesis or dissertation. If credits are needed at this point, M.A. students may register for thesis or essay credits. This will keep students in full-time student status for the purpose of student loans and IU computing accounts.

Students are encouraged to look into funding options for living and researching while overseas.

Registration while abroad

You can review both the Schedule of Classes and on-line course information, and you can register on online using OneStart. Before registering, you must consult with your academic advisor by email to get clearance to register. An email record of your academic advisor’s approval is required for the Department to clear you for registration. If you will not have online access while overseas, you should contact the Registrar’s Office before you leave to find out your options.

If you are not planning to be registered for IU credits while you are off-campus, it is important to keep in mind that not registering can affect your financial aid and student loan status, especially student loan repayment. You should be sure to check with the financial aid office and your student loan lender to determine how non-registration may affect your status.
7. Applying to an EALC PhD Program

Because only students who have earned a Master's degree in a relevant area are admitted directly to the Ph.D. program in EALC, Master's candidates in this department who wish to be admitted to an EALC doctoral program need to apply to the doctoral program after they have completed the M.A. or when they are close to doing so. Because graduate applications are reviewed only once a year (in January for the following fall semester), M.A. candidates who are nearing completion of their degrees often apply the year before they expect to finish.

Your application dossier should include a completed application form, a statement of purpose, and three letters of recommendation, normally from IUB faculty who can speak to your scholarly work as a graduate student. It is not necessary to retake the GREs. You do not need to include an official IUB transcript or transcripts from schools you attended before coming to IUB; nor do you need to pay a second application fee. See the Graduate Secretary about having your application fee waived for the online application.

If you apply for admission to the doctoral program before you have completed the M.A. degree, and if your application is favorably reviewed, you will be offered admission, contingent upon timely completion of the M.A. When this has been accomplished, you should follow up with the Graduate Secretary to be sure that your official academic objective is changed from a Master's degree to a doctorate.
8. EALC Departmental Facilities

Administrative Offices
Hours: 8:00 a.m. - 12:00 p.m. and 1:00 p.m. - 5:00 p.m. weekdays

EALC administrative offices are located in Goodbody Hall, Rooms 230, 250, and 248. Overall coordination of department administrative matters is the responsibility of the Fiscal Officer/Office Manager, Deb Speer (Room 248). Most matters pertaining to graduate students are handled by the Graduate Secretary, Erin Garcia (Room 230). General office support and reception is taken care of by Rachel Gray (Room 250).

Mail and Copy Room: Goodbody 232
Hours: 8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m. weekdays

The copy machine, all faculty, AI, and graduate student mailboxes are located here.

Lounge: Goodbody 201
Hours: 8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m. weekdays.

The lounge is intended as an informal meeting place for students, AIs, Faculty, and Staff who use Goodbody Hall. It includes a small kitchenette with a refrigerator and microwave oven. All EALC students are welcome to make use of the kitchen area, but please clean up after yourself. During the school year, the refrigerator will be cleaned out every other Friday.

Reading Room: Goodbody 228
Hours: 8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m. weekdays.

The Reading Room houses a small, informal EALC library, which includes copies of theses and dissertations of EALC students. Reading room materials cannot be checked out, and must be used in the building.

As long as there is not an event (a class, etc.) scheduled in the Reading Room, students may use it for quiet study. Please check the calendar on the door to see if it is available. If you wish to converse or have a group study session, it is preferable that you use the Lounge in room 201.

East Asian Studies Center: Main office - Memorial Hall 207 W
The East Asian Studies Center (EASC) works to support and promote East Asian studies at IU. It seeks and administers grants and funding to support East Asian studies, works on community outreach, sponsors speakers and colloquia, and publishes an online newsletter. EASC also employs some EALC graduate students on a part-time basis. The EASC website is: http://www.indiana.edu/~easc.
