

Monday, May 14, 2012
Noon to 1:30 p.m.

You are invited to meet the Framing the Global Fellows, who will share their approaches to exploring global processes with their students and discuss how global studies is defined and practiced within their varied institutions and disciplines.

On Monday, May 14, 2012, the Framing the Global Fellows will be participating in the Global Studies Positioning Series, a luncheon discussion series at the Center for the Study of Global Change, 201 N. Indiana Avenue. This event is free and open to the public, but space is limited and reservations are required. Lunch will be provided. For reservations, contact framing@indiana.edu.

For more information about the Fellows, <http://www.indiana.edu/~global/framing/fellows.php>

WHEN: Monday, May 14, 2012, noon-1:30 p.m.

WHERE: Center for the Study of Global Change, 201 N. Indiana Avenue