Students’ Statements
What one main thing have you learnt from this course?

➢ Drama not only is a way of entertainment as what we usually thought, it is more a way to teach people, to let people realize problems surround us and make change, development and improvement.

➢ Breaking the stereotype and perceive every matters in pure gaze was one thing that I learnt from this course.

➢ I had three friends at the beginning of the class. However, I end up having to know ten more students in class.

➢ It was great to work in groups as I was able to communicate and share thoughts with other students in class. I learned how to behave properly as a group member and also to acknowledge and respect other students’ idea. It would have been harder for me to film and produce drama by myself, and yet with much help and amiable condition of other group members really made whole process easier.

➢ I was liked working in a group, because it allowed for me to think deeper and have wider perspectives on the designated topic.

➢ I liked how there were many opportunities to learn and perceive African cultures in different perspective. In-class activities and final project were two of the most interesting part of this class.

➢ I did not know some of the group members at first and was worried about working together; not showing up, being late, not participating, etc. However, I believe our team was one of the best in the entire class. Everybody had a role and spoke up for their opinions, and worked hard for every project.
➢ It was an educational, but stress-free class. Materials we learned in class are very informative and require students to think again about Africa as a whole, and the role of theater for development.

➢ I think the experience working in this group is interesting for me. I have learned the skills of how to communicate with group member to get efficiency.

➢ I hope the class can attract more students from different nations to attend in this class. Presently it is full of Asian students.

➢ I like learning about the histories of Eastern Europe and Latin America through the skits and films of other students.

➢ I learnt a lot more positive things about Africa than I had ever known before. The video Africa Straight Up and the DANGER OF A SINGLE STORY were great and quite informative!
