

Mark S. Hamm is Professor of Criminology at Indiana State University. He has published widely in the areas of terrorism, hate crime, and prisoner subcultures. He is the author of nine books, including Terrorism as Crime: From Oklahoma City to Al-Qaeda and Beyond (2007). He is currently at work on a study of terrorist recruitment in U.S. and British prisons.