Research incentive fund

The InULA Research Incentive Fund is intended to encourage and support research by providing funding for research projects of any size or scope. Because it is often difficult for beginning researchers to obtain research grants, project proposals submitted by untenured librarians will receive top priority. However, all requests will be considered.

This award is to be used for support in the following categories:

1. Seed support of research and research-related activities used to develop a larger research proposal.
2. Funds for research equipment or materials.
3. Travel to support the research project.
4. Publication subsidies.
5. Other needs not defined above, including copying, secretarial services, preparation of graphics for publications, computing services, I.L.L. costs, postage, telephone, etc.

Any regular member of InULA is eligible to apply by filling out the InULA Research Incentive Fund application form available from the President of InULA. Awards are available each quarter, and the deadlines for application for each quarter are August 31, November 30, February 28, and May 31.

The 1989 membership survey of the InULA Members, a summary of which constitutes the major part of this issue, has provided a wealth of information. This year’s Board has been analyzing the survey data and considering possible ways we can best use the information to strengthen InULA. I wish to thank Mary Popp for the excellent tabulation and analysis of the survey results.

At mid-year, one of the concerns of the Executive Board involves strengthening the funding for the InULA Research Incentive Grants and the InULA Scholarship. The grants are one of the highest ranked activities by InULA members. At the present time, the only funding base from which the annual InULA Auction. The amount of money available each year is dependent on the sale proceeds of the previous year. The Board recognizes that the Society may wish to look into additional fund raising activities to support the incentive grant program and to create a more stable funding base. Only with an expanded funding base, can InULA consider increasing the amount and number of incentive grants. One possible method may be including an option for a donation for the grant fund to the membership dues forms. At present, The Board is also reviewing the guidelines for the Incentive Grants.

Another concern is the scholarship awarded annually to a student in the graduate program of the School of Information and Library Science. As many of you are aware, the cost of education has risen since this scholarship was founded. However, the amount InULA offers to the recipient has not. With an average graduate cost being $88 per credit hour, our scholarship of $1,000 barely is the financial assistance that it once was. This activity received high support in the membership survey too.

Not to give the impression that I and the Executive Board are concerned only with the expenditures of InULA supporting research and study, we do have other concerns. Presently the Constitution Committee under the guidance of Jackie Byrd is reviewing the committees defined in our Constitution and Bylaws and others that exist by tradition. I am reviewing the Association’s archives. My initial survey uncovered only documents from 1969-1978, and 1984 present. Hopefully, some of the missing years can be found.

I am interested in hearing from you, the members of InULA, on concerns you may have about InULA.

   3 (3%) ................................................................. No
   9 (9%) ................................................................. No answer / no opinion / undecided

   If so, should the current cycle of Research Incentive Grants made quarterly (every 3 months) be maintained? Available funding for the grants is divided so that 1/4th of the money is allocated to each quarter.

   6 ...... No, award the Grants once a year
   23 ...... No, award the Grants every 6 months (twice a year)
   6 ...... No, award the Grants every 4 months (3 times a year)
   22 ...... No answer/don’t know/no opinion (only includes people who answered “yes” above)
Currently the Research Incentive Grants are funded from the proceeds of the annual InULA Auction. These vary from year to year. Should InULA supplement the Auction proceeds to make certain that the same amount of money is available each year?

4. Please comment on InULA’s fund raising activities (e.g., the National Library Week Book Sale, the Auction). What other methods of fundraising should InULA pursue?

1) It might be nice to do events that combine socializing and fund raising—e.g., dinner/dance or dinner/theater evenings.
2) InULA usually has a good response to its current fund-raising activities. It is possible that other options exist but research efforts would have to be made to determine availability for this organization.
3) Rather than spending lots of time on “Events” for nickel and dime profits, ask for an outright contribution - e.g. $10 per person.
4) Dues increase.
5) I like these activities, although I’ve never attended an auction. Other methods? I don’t know what resources are at our disposal.
6) We can have something like a year end auction or pre-holiday season auction. Coaches signed balls or home made cakes will help these activities.
7) Current methods are good. Maybe beefing up the existing fund raisers would help, preferable adding more of them.
8) They’re well organized and certainly appreciated.
9) Doing auction items by mail gives other campuses an opportunity to participate.
10) I think these two are fine; more would simply stretch members too far. I think these two provide a budget sufficient for InULA to do good things.
11) Does the book sale bring in enough to justify the labor and time involved? Could the auction be open to the entire library staff. Perhaps it is now, but staff participation does not seem to be particularly encouraged.
12) Now that we have a logo, perhaps T-shirts, pens, etc.
13) Yard sale could be another moneymaker.
14) A book sale/auction in Indianapolis, too and at the regional campuses! More activities should be held beyond Bloomington, where the “Rest of us live.”
15) Book sale is not stable as a source of funding. If we have good books (e.g. HRL’s) we will make lots of money. If not (and this is likely to be the case in 1-2 years), we won’t. Need to come up with fund raiser all campuses “own.”
16) I think there should be a limit on the number of books a person (or a dealer) can purchase on the first day of the book sale. Also, I don’t like the formula or category pricing. I’d rather see some attempt made to set a price for each book.
17) Lottery franchise!
18) What about a benefit concert? It may cost more than other fundraisers, but it might raise enough money to be worthwhile. Perhaps we could schedule it during National Library Week.
Membership Survey Results (conclusion...)

19) How about a raffle to pay one day, or more, at ALA or ACRL conference?
20) Excellent activities. We should try one near time people are thinking about holiday gifts.
21) How about an InULA T-shirt, a National library week bookbag and/or T-shirt.
22) Somewhat raised dues (a popular suggestions, I’m sure!!)
23) I like both the book sale and the auction. Could there be perhaps another book sale, since it’s so popular and there are so many books? Perhaps in the fall?
24) I have little knowledge, living so far away.

Conclusions

A. Most members planned to renew their membership for 1989-90.
B. Even allowing for problems with the question, respondents felt that the Innuendo, Continuing Education workshops, and the research incentive grants were the most valuable of InULA’s activities.
C. InULA should investigate the establishment of “‘chapters.’”
D. Half or more of Indianapolis and Bloomington respondents had attended a program meeting in the past 2 years. Almost no one responding from the other campuses had done so.
E. Campuses outside of Bloomington and Indianapolis showed greater participation in continuing education workshops than in programs.
F. Most people preferred not to travel away from their own campuses for program meetings, but seemed more willing to travel to continuing education workshops.
G. Everyone read the Innuendo. Most felt that the right amount of space had been devoted to InULA issues, to substantive articles, and to information about the IU Libraries.
H. Many people would welcome more frequent publication of the Innuendo.
I. The smaller Innuendo format was satisfactory.
J. Most people were satisfied with the themes covered by the Innuendo.
K. InULA should consider publishing other types of materials, such as “‘occasional papers.’”
L. InULA has similar plans.
M. InULA should continue to provide research incentive grants on a quarterly cycle and consider supplemental funding to keep the amount of the award stable.
N. InULA should continue to fund the library school scholarship, but review the amount of money given and the award criteria.
