

IU AT KING'S COLLEGE

2009

The School of Public and Environmental Affairs (SPEA) is pleased to announce a new summer 2009 overseas study program at King's College London. Students accepted into this prestigious program will attend classes taught by Dr. John Graham, SPEA's Dean, and Dr. Ragnar Lofstedt, Director of the Centre for Risk Management at King's College. Details and opportunities of the program include:

- Dates are June 29 to July 24, during the summer break at King's College
- Two, 3 credit hour SPEA courses will be offered, titled "Managing Hazards in Europe in the United States I and II" (note: these courses are for management and policy students – they are not technical courses in hazard management)
- Costs - including tuition, airfare, lodging, food and health care - will be approximately $4700 for Indiana residents and $6500 for non-residents
- Partial scholarships will be available for eligible students
- Explore the beautiful historic city of London and surrounding areas
- Enjoy course-related excursions and cultural opportunities
- For more information about King's College, go to <http://www.kcl.ac.uk/about/>.

Program admission requirements:

- Admission is competitive
- Minimum cumulative GPA for admission is 2.75
- Preference will be given to applicants with 3.00 or above cumulative GPA
- Application deadline is February 16, 2009

Pending formal authorization by the IU Overseas Study Advisory Council, more information about this exciting new King's College program - including costs, scholarships, syllabus, and other details - will be sent by early December. In the meantime, mark your calendars for this once in a lifetime opportunity!
