This course introduces the basic concepts of Hispanic linguistics and sets the background for the future application of linguistic principles. The course surveys linguistic properties in Spanish, including phonology, morphology, and syntax. Additional introductory material on historical linguistics, language acquisition, semantics, pragmatics and sociolinguistics will be included.