Section # 28645 for Honors Students only and needs on-line authorization.

This course introduces the tools of grammatical analysis as well as the theory and principles upon which these analyses are built. Analytical methods will be applied to problems selected from phonetics, phonology, morphology, and syntax. Basic concepts are laid out in lecture and expanded upon in the discussion section. The discussion section is intended to develop skills of linguistic analysis and argumentation by working through data-based problems.
