From access to education as well as the empowerment found in education, women’s history is inextricably linked to the education of women. In collaboration with the National Women’s History Project, we encourage reflection on the theme: “Women’s Education, Women’s Empowerment”. In that vein, we invite graduate students, undergraduate students and IU staff to select one or more topics pertaining to the education movements in the world, and to the way access to education as well as trends in education have shaped women’s history. Women as well as men of all backgrounds are encouraged to participate.

Deadline for entry: March 23, 2012

Co-Sponsored by: Office of the Dean of Students, Hutton Honors College, Wells Scholars Program, First Nations Educational and Cultural Center, Helene G. Simon Hillel Center, Neal-Marshall Black Culture Center, La Casa, the Asian Culture Center, IU Working Moms (IUWM) Diversity, Equity and Multicultural Affairs (DEMA)