L503: Survey of Linguistics (F13: 3CR: 3687)

Time & Classroom: T/R 2:30 -3:45 PM, ED 1204
Instructor: Dr. Yoshihisa Kitagawa / Memorial Hall 325 (TEL: 5-0041)
E-mail: kitagawa@indiana.edu / HP: www.iub.edu/~ykling
Department of Linguistics: Memorial Hall 322 (TEL: 5-6456 or 6459)
Office Hours: T/R 3:50-4:50 PM, and by appointment
Course Description: This course introduces the basic tools of grammatical analysis (of sounds, words, sentences and meanings) for graduate students who have no or little background in formal linguistics. It is suitable for students interested in linguistics, foreign languages, speech and hearing sciences, second language studies, elementary or secondary English education, or cognitive science, among others.
Prerequisite: none

This course
— can be counted toward minor in linguistics including CL (with the minor advisor's approval).
— can be counted as an elective course for MA students in CL.
— cannot be counted toward major in linguistics (even as an elective course) for MA or Ph.D. students in general linguistics and Ph.D. students in CL.

Requirements:
1) Regular class attendance and participation
2) Reading assignments (as specified below)
3) Assignments (and Quizzes) throughout the semester — 30-35%
   — Timely submission with serious attempt will generally result in full scores.
4) Mid-term exams — 30-35%
5) Final exam — 30-35%

Attendance: No official absence will be admitted unless you have a justifiable reason and provide a document to prove it, e.g., notes from the doctor, police department, the interviewing company, etc. Unjustified absence will have negative impact on the final grade. While advanced notification will be nice, that alone will not justify your absence. Do not e-mail the instructor and ask to be excused unless you can justify it in the way described above. Religious holidays will NOT automatically justify your absence — you must notify your absence well in advance and those holidays must be approved by the university. If you miss classes for any extended period of time without notifying the instructor, you may not be allowed to remain in the class thereafter irrespective of reasons for absence. Without a truly justifiable reason, no incompletes will be granted.

Communication: Not only the notification in the class but also that by e-mail and through Oncourse (http://oncourse.iu.edu) is official. The students are advised to check e-mail frequently, especially immediately before the class. Do NOT leave/send a message in/from Oncourse.
