On Monday, March 28, from 11–1 in the Persimmon Room of the IMU, The Medieval Studies Institute and the Medieval Studies Graduate Advisory Committee are pleased to present a Workshop on Publishing within the Humanities.

Four Medieval Studies professors will be sharing their expertise:

David Brakke (Religious Studies)
Deborah Deliyannis (History)
Patricia Ingham (English), and
John Walbridge. (Near Eastern Languages and Cultures)

The panelists will each speak on one aspect of academic publishing essential to medievalists (and others in the Humanities), discussing how to publish monographs, book reviews, and journal articles, as well as offering insight into the business of editing journals. There will be time for discussion and questions. The event is intended for graduate students of all years as well as interested faculty members.

Lunch is BYO, but snacks and drinks will be provided, so please RSVP by March 21st to Diane Fruchtman (dsfrucht@indiana.edu)
