Joseph T. Fuhrmann, MA’64, Cert/PhD’68, is the author of Rasputin: the Untold Story, published in October by John Wiley & Sons. The biography unveils the truth behind Gregory Rasputin’s storied life, controversial relationships, and much-discussed death, unearthing previously unknown details from Rasputin’s childhood and his early years as a farmer and itinerant preacher to his decade-long relationship with the Romanovs. An emeritus professor of history at Murray State University in Kentucky, Fuhrmann attended Moscow University from 1965 to 1966. His first biography of Rasputin, Rasputin: A Life (Praeger, 1989) was greeted as the best book on the subject. Having gained access to previously closed Soviet archives, Fuhrmann has studied a host of unpublished documents since 1991. His first biography inspired documentaries on A&E and the History Channel. Fuhrmann, who lives in Murray, Ky., has appeared on a number of television programs as an interviewed guest and as script consultant. His next book will be a biography of Nicholas II.

Kelly C. Moore, MA’94, runs a dating blog, “Happily Ever After or Bust,” which was awarded the 2011 Reader’s Choice Award for Best Dating Blog. About.com awarded Moore the honor from a field of 59 nominees. A writer and yoga teacher, Moore’s eclectic background working in the rough and tumble worlds of football, counter-terrorism, and politics has given her a unique perspective on romance. She previously worked for the National Football League; lived in three war zones working for the United Nations; served on the 9/11 Commission where she co-authored 9/11 and Terrorist Travel; helped run a global counterterrorism program at the State Department; and was the Senate press secretary to Sen. Joe Lieberman during his vice presidential bid. Her writing has been published by The New York Times and U.S. News & World Report. She is the author of a forthcoming book about yoga.

Ivan B. Shidlovsky, MA’99, is a U.S. Army colonel who recently spent a year serving in Afghanistan. He lives in Springfield, Va.

Marie E. Harf, BA’03, served as associate policy director for national security for President Obama’s re-election campaign. Before joining the campaign, Harf — who holds a master’s degree in foreign affairs from the University of Virginia — was a spokesman for the Central Intelligence Agency. In April 2012, she married Joshua P. Lucas in Vienna, Va.
