«Российские либералы и Соединенные Штаты Америки, 1905-1917 (на примере конституционно-демократической партии)» [Russian Liberals and the United States of America, 1905-1917 (as exemplified by the Constitutional Democratic Party of Russia)] - in Russian

Пётр Скопин [Petr Skopin]

Thursday, April 3/12:15
Ballantine Hall 004

During the period of Russian parliamentarism (1905-1917), Russian liberals regarded the United States as an example of democracy and civil rights, and liberal political programs reflected the principles of the US Constitution and the Bill of Rights. This talk will address Russian liberal perceptions of the United States and attempts to adopt American political, social and economic principles to the Russian pre-Soviet realities.

Petr Skopin is a doctoral student in history at the Russian Academy of Sciences and currently a visiting Fulbright scholar at Indiana University under the auspices of the Russian and East European Institute.

Sponsor: Russian and East European Institute

Persons with disabilities who wish to attend the lecture and would like to request assistance should contact the REEI office (812-855-7309 or reei@indiana.edu)