In 1921 White commander Baron Ungern led a bloody campaign to conquer Mongolia and resurrect the fallen dynasties of the Romanov and the Qing. Most scholars assume he was crazy, but perhaps the real story is one of empire? Sunderland’s talk examines Ungern’s imperial life as well as the tangled challenges of writing microhistory and biography on an imperial scale.