Indiana University's Department of Central Eurasian Studies invites applications for the Balassi Institute Graduate Fellowship in Hungarian Studies. The Fellowship will be given to a student who has been admitted to the Department of Central Eurasian Studies and the University Graduate School at Indiana University-Bloomington and is primarily engaged in research falling within the field of Hungarian language and area studies, including but not limited to Hungarian culture and history. Indiana University is a research university with world-class programs in both area studies and the disciplines; its libraries hold the richest university-based Hungarian collections in the US. All applicants are welcome, but citizens of the US and Canada are strongly preferred. Annual fellowship benefits include tuition remission, health insurance, and a fellowship stipend of a minimum of $12,000; the fellowship is renewable.

Applicants should submit a letter of interest to Balassi Institute Graduate Fellowship Selection Committee, Central Eurasian Studies, Global &International Studies Building 3024, Bloomington, IN 47405-1105. Include your full name, IU degree program and department, description of your research and two letters of recommendation.

Applications received by February 21, 2016 will receive priority for consideration.

For those that are not currently at IU would also need to apply for admission. Although the deadline for admission has passed we would still accept applications for admission as long as they were complete (application, statement of purpose, all official transcripts, three letters of recommendation) by February 21st.