The Southern Conference on Slavic Studies and the University of South Alabama invite scholars of all disciplines to submit proposals for panels or individual papers.

For details on how to submit a proposal, see our full call for papers in NewsNet or on H-Russia. For local arrangements, contact Mara Kozelsky (mkozelsky@southalabama.edu) or Nicholas Gossett (ngossett@southalabama.edu). For questions regarding the program, contact Emily Baran (scssprogram@gmail.com).

The John Shelton Curtiss Lecture will be given by Dr. Kate Brown, Professor of History at the University of Maryland--Baltimore County.

The Association of Women in Slavic Studies will be hosting its conference on March 14 in conjunction with this event. Submit AWSS proposals to Paula Michaels (paula.michaels@monash.edu) by December 15. For other questions, contact Sharon Kowalsky (sharon.kowalsky@tamuc.edu). Participants in the AWSS and SCSS are invited to attend both conferences for the same registration fee.

SCSS Proposal Deadline: January 15, 2019
