

University of Pittsburgh

The Department of Music seeks applications for two Assistant Professor appointments, full-time tenure stream beginning Sept. 1, 2006, pending budgetary approval. Duties: Teach undergraduate and graduate courses, direct theses and dissertations; conduct research and participate in scholarly communication; share in departmental responsibilities. Qualifications: PhD in music; potential for distinguished scholarship in music research in the history of western music, ethnomusicology, intercultural music, and/or music theory; record of excellent teaching; interest in working with colleagues in the department and related disciplines. We seek approaches that extend and complement those of current faculty; research strengths may include 19th- and 20th-century music, Latin American music, South Asian music, American music, popular music, opera, music theory in relation to these topics, media studies, cultural studies, gender studies, sexuality studies, or other distinctive areas at the forefront of music research. Further information is available www.pitt.edu/~musicdpt. Candidates should submit a letter of application, CV, sample publication, and 3 letters of reference to: Search Committee, c/o Prof. Deane Root, Dept. of Music, Univ. of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, PA 15260. In order to ensure full consideration, applications must be received by Nov. 28, 2005. The University of Pittsburgh is an Affirmative Action, Equal Opportunity employer. We particularly invite applications from women and members of minority groups under-represented in academia.