Courses for Students in Majors Outside of Sociology

The following courses are frequently offered by the Department of Sociology for undergraduates. Below, we list courses that are relevant to pre-professional students and those with majors outside of sociology.

Health, medicine, and dentistry

The Department of sociology offers a number of courses of interest to pre-medical students, pre-dental students, nursing students, and students in health related areas. In particular, SOC-S 365 is designed to help pre-medical students prepare for the sociology components of the Medical College Admission Test (MCAT).

SOC-S 100 Introduction to Sociology

SOC-S 101 Social Problems and Policies (Topic: Medicine in America)

SOC-S 324 Mental Illness

SOC-S 358 Social Issues in Health and Medicine

SOC-S 365 Social Foundations of Behavior: Applications for Health Settings

SOC-S 410 Advanced Topics in Social Organization – for sections dedicated to health issues

Business

SOC-S 101 Social Problems and Policies (Topic: Work)

SOC-S 210 The Economy, Organization, and Work

SOC-S 215 Social Change

SOC-S 302 Organizations in Society

SOC-S 308 Global Society

SOC-S 315 Work and Occupations

SOC-S 339 The Sociology of Media
Public and Environmental Affairs

SOC- S 101 Social Problems and Policies
SOC- S 105 Community Problems and Outreach
SOC-S 215 Social Change
SOC-S 308 Global Society
SOC-S 309 The Community
SOC-S 311 Politics and Society
SOC-S 326 Law and Society
SOC-S 360 Topics in Social Policy

Law and Criminal Justice

SOC-S 320 Deviant Behavior and Social Control
SOC-S 324 Mental Illness
SOC-S 325 Criminology
SOC-S 326 Law and Society
SOC-S 329 Women and Deviance
SOC-S 335 Race and Ethnic Relations