The Department of Spanish and Portuguese, the Center for Latin American and Caribbean Studies and the Department of Comparative Literature present a lecture by

Nelson Cerqueira

"Hermeneutics and Literary Criticism: Reading Jorge Amado"

Monday, October 28
5:00 p.m.
Ballantine Hall 004

Nelson Cerqueira received his Ph.D. in Comparative Literature from Indiana University-Bloomington in 1986. He also helped to introduce culture studies courses into the Portuguese curriculum, with courses on Jorge Amado, the Brazilian Northeast and Lusophone Africa. He is currently President of the Zacarias de Goes-FAZAG School, Adjunct Professor of the Helio Rocha School in Bahia and works in collaboration with the Graduate Program in Law at the Federal University of Bahia.