Linguistics Symposium
Papers from the 3rd Hispanic
Turn of the Millennium
Hispanic Linguistics at the
The report emphasizes the second stage in Spanish.
In the context of this document: The following excerpt shows an example of how the text is structured and formatted.

The text begins with a heading or section title, followed by paragraphs of explanatory prose. The paragraphs are numbered or lettered, and subheadings are used for additional organization.

This format is typical for academic or technical writing, where clarity and organization are crucial for the reader's understanding.

The text continues with further details, examples, and arguments relevant to the subject matter.

At the end of the excerpt, there is a reference or citation, indicating the source of the information or the authority behind the claims.

Overall, the document seems to be a detailed examination of a particular topic, likely aimed at an audience with a background in the relevant field.
null
A difference of |Δ| is considered meaningful and statistically significant.

!Diagram

Figure 1. Mean of |Δ| by type of plate.

The mean of |Δ| for the experimental group is significantly higher than the control group. This indicates that the experimental condition leads to a larger difference in the measured variable compared to the control condition. The significance level is 0.05, as indicated by the asterisks in the figure. The bars represent the 95% confidence intervals for the means. The asterisks designate the statistical significance of the differences between the groups.