Sustainability in an Unequal World

Dr. Julian Agyeman
Professor of Urban & Environmental Policy & Planning, Tufts University

Just Sustainabilities: Re-imagining e/quality, Living Within Limits

Dr. Agyeman is an ecologist/biogeographer turned environmental social scientist. His natural and social science background frames his perspectives and research, which thrives at the intersections of a wide range of knowledges, disciplines and methodologies. Dr. Agyeman’s will present examples on the following themes to explore his concept of “just sustainabilities”:

Global resource distribution • Intercultural cities • Wellbeing and happiness • The new, sharing economy • Spatial justice

Dr. Drew Lanham
Alumni Distinguished Professor of Wildlife Ecology, Clemson University

Range Mapping- The Essential Eco-Social Exercise of Blurring the Lines Between Birds and People

Dr. Lanham is a wildlife ecologist, author, poet, birder, hunter and wandering soul. He is intrigued with how culture and ethnic prisms can bend perceptions of nature and its care. His work translates conservation science to make it relevant to others in ways that are evocative and understandable. Dr. Lanham will connect the range maps of birds and humans to explore:

Survival and thrivability • Range mapping • Species coexistence • Inclusive conservation
