Immigrant Food Memoirs with Recipes

Food memoirs with recipes written by immigrants warmly welcome readers into the domestic space and show them how they live and eat. These first-person texts lift the curtain on a subject that so many want to know about but are afraid to ask:

What makes people leave their homes and families and move to a strange land to begin their lives anew?

These memoirs share their writers’ experience of that journey. They also extend the “Welcome Table” by inviting readers to recreate the meals featured within their pages by making their families’ lives an open book in the most literal sense. This allows readers to share a first-hand taste of the experience of immigration and adaptation to U.S. culture. Children of immigrants negotiate their own ambiguous relationship to the immigrant generation and to their American peers by alternating their eating choices to reflect their sense of belonging to each of their communities.

Vivian Nun Halloran is the author of The Immigrant Kitchen: Food, Ethnicity, and Diaspora (2016). She has also contributed chapters to the edited volumes: What's Eating You?: Food and Horror on Screen (2016), Mothers and Food: Negotiating Foodways from Maternal Perspectives (2016); and Dethroning the Decetful Pork Chop: Rethinking African American Foodways from Slavery to Obama (2015). Dr. Halloran is associate professor of English and American Studies at Indiana University.

Hiking in Southern Indiana

Seeking New Leadership

Since 2006, our dedicated nature enthusiasts, Eleanor Lahr and Bob Dodd, have organized four different hikes each year for the Hiking Interest Group. Participants have learned a lot about Indiana history, geology, flora and fauna. After the hike to Stone Head Nature Preserve, Eleanor and Bob retired as the official organizers of this robust group.

Although they leave big hiking boots to fill, Eleanor and Bob are hopeful that a new leader will step up to the plate. (Could that someone be YOU?!?) Interested hikers should contact Eleanor for more information on how much fun it can be to serve in this role. She has 10 years of experience to prove it!

Please call Eleanor Lahr at 812-339-4209 or email elahr@indiana.edu

Who Gets to Be a Saint?

On September 4th, 2016 Mother Theresa of Calcutta was declared a saint before huge crowds in the Vatican. Pope Francis delivered the formula of canonization, concluding by declaring “Blessed Teresa of Calcutta to be a Saint.” Does that mean Mother Theresa was not a saint before? How does the process work? Mother Theresa was, of course, widely viewed as a saint before her canonization. Is this popular perception wrong? This course will explore famous saints and saints you have never heard of. It will introduce you to the fascinating history of, and the complex process of, canonization. And it will discuss some people whose canonization caused controversy as well as others, widely viewed as saints, who were never canonized.

Disaster in the Everyday: Crisis & Conflict

It seems as though our world is connected now more than ever. News of protests, military occupations, and earthquakes reach us within minutes. The news is international, but the effects of disaster are always local. Because people use traditional forms of folklore to create a framework of normalcy in times of uncertainty -- and folklore is the study of everyday life -- this course will examine the ways in which people make sense out of “rupture in the everyday.” By looking at the social texts that people create and use to talk about their experiences in times of disaster we will examine the multiple ways people deal with and understand their local world.
