State of the Club Address

Dear Members,

The state of the Club is good: the Board did a very good job planning and implementing many excellent programs this past year; and our financial position is solid, with both rental income and membership dues significantly higher than last year. We continue to maintain a beautiful and comfortable facility here in the IMU. Our greatest asset is the enthusiastic and energetic group of people who make the Club an exciting, fun group to be part of: the creative, hard-working board, our dynamic Manager, Svetla Vladeva, who handles a myriad of tasks with speed and efficiency; and, especially, you, the members of the Club, whose “social and intellectual interest” are our reason for being, to quote Club’s constitutional purpose, which “the Club promotes through lectures, gatherings, trips and other events that provide education, enhance communication, and foster networking.”

Intellectual interests and education are promoted primarily through luncheon speaker programs, two most months, and this last year they included novelist James Alexander Thom; Dina Kellams, Director of IU Archives, who told the story of IU’s first female African-American student; economist Morton Marcus; Afghanistan expert Doug Wissing; Prof. Sonia Velazquez, who talked about beauty and illustrated it with slides of great medieval paintings; Anne Delgado and Rebecca Baumann, IU researchers on detective and crime fiction; Prof. Jon Macy who discussed public health programs that have reduced smoking as well as other public health achievements and challenges; Malcolm Abrams, editor and publisher of the national award-winning Bloom Magazine; Prof. Vivian Nun Halloran who explained what makes people leave their homes and become immigrants in a strange, new land; and today’s lecture on the first 100 days of the Trump presidency by Prof. Marjorie Hershey.

The Club’s other basic purpose is to cultivate “social interest,” “enhance communications and foster networking” and, if anything, we’ve done even more here. We had a highly popular dinner with wines paired with various courses last May, to be repeated next month on the 19th. In September, we began the academic year with another large turnout, our Welcome Back featuring Mayor Hamilton as keynoter. The Oktoberfest dinner, with guidance by Prof. Greg Kitzmiller on tasting several different kinds of beers, also attracted a capacity crowd. In December the Holiday Gala dinner was also very popular. Kate Kroll hosted a New Year’s Eve dinner and party, and we had a Super Bowl pitch-in dinner, watching the game on our large-screen TV upstairs while playing some betting games. In February we also had a shared dinner while watching the Indiana-Purdue basketball game. Last month we had a St. Patrick’s Day pitch-in dinner with a movie.

Many members also belong to special Interest Groups, organized by the University Women’s Club. The Interest Groups are very strong in “cultivating social interest, enhancing communications, and fostering networking” and they include Antiques, Book Discussion, Book Exchange, Duplicate Bridge, Party Bridge, Bunco, Dining Out, Fine Dining Cooking, Hiking, International Friendship, Lunchettes, Shop ‘til You Drop, and Yoga. One of the largest Interest Groups is the Great Decisions group that meets monthly at Meadowood and which balances social and intellectual interests, as do many of the Interest Groups.

We are continually impressed with the many and diverse activities of the Club and large audiences at many events (especially today!), but it’s also true that we need always to ask how we can reach more IU-connected people and adapt our programs to better meet their intellectual and social interests. The number of Club members is around 600, slightly up from two years ago, but ten years ago there were over 1000 members. Many of you responded —thank you!— to a survey that we sent out a few weeks ago, asking for your evaluations of current programs and suggestions for new types of programs, including late-afternoon cocktail hours with speakers and/or music, and local trips to theater productions, art shows, and other places of interest. This past year we experimented in developing new programs aimed especially at graduate students, and we will continue to try out new programs and to develop more effective ways of reaching out to our large and diverse constituencies. We very much need your input! Please give us your suggestions and your active participation in planning and putting on programs, including new programs. If you’re not a member, please sign up today: most retired IU faculty and staff members will have their membership paid by IU as a retirement benefit. Help us plan programs and, above all, attend as many as you can, to make next year another great year!

Sincerely,

Joe and Ruth Miller, Co-Presidents

HIKING IN SOUTHERN INDIANA

SEEKING NEW LEADERSHIP

Since 2006, our dedicated nature enthusiasts, Eleanor Lahr and Bob Dodd, have organized four different hikes each year for the Hiking Interest Group. Participants have learned a lot about Indiana history, geology, flora and fauna. After the hike to Stone Head Nature Preserve, Eleanor and Bob retired as the official organizers of this robust group.

Although they leave big hiking boots to fill, Eleanor and Bob are hopeful that a new leader will step up to the plate. (Could that someone be YOU?!?) Interested hikers should contact Eleanor for more information on how much fun it can be to serve in this role. She has 10 years of experience to prove it!

Please call Eleanor Lahr at 812-339-4209 or email elahr@indiana.edu

Long Live Santa Evita:
The Life & Post-Life of Eva Perón

In a region where women have historically suffered marginalization and exclusion, and at a time when a woman’s roles and responsibilities were understood to begin and end at the front door of the house, Eva Perón radically challenged what a woman could do and be. With the likelihood that gender becomes an increasingly prominent aspect of electoral politics around the world, it is especially worthwhile to reconsider the significance of a woman who, during and after her life, earned both the adulation and loathing of her fellow Argentines.
