At this fiftieth anniversary...

Look at us! How we’ve grown, from meetings consisting of barely more than a dozen papers to an almost frightening mass of over 400 presentations. For better or worse, this program presents the state of ethnomusicology in North America, and to a considerable extent throughout the world, as it exists in 2005.

Look back in admiration: A lot in this program will remind us of the beginnings and early days of SEM, and of the accomplishments of scholars fifty years ago and earlier. Look back in a critical spirit: We may have grown, but we will also ask how well we have done, as an organization and a profession, and whether we have indeed made worthwhile contributions to scholarship and to society. Look back with nostalgia: There is something heroic about those early years, something worthy of being recalled. Look outward: This program includes an exceptionally large proportion of presentations by colleagues from many nations outside North America. Welcome! Look forward: There are some papers and talks that speak explicitly to the future; but there is a lot more in this program that suggests new perspectives to be developed and new directions for the field and for SEM.

As a special feature of this program book, we present the following excursions into the first fifty years of SEM and recall events that occurred fifty years ago, to the day.

Celebrate, learn, be inspired!

SEM History at a Glance

A. The Events of November 18, 1955

(Excerpts from David McAllester’s account, Ethno-Musicology Newsletter, no. 6 [January, 1956], pp. 3-5)

Organizational Meeting in Boston: On Friday evening, Nov. 18, at the 54th Annual Meeting of the American Anthropological Association, a group of interested persons met to discuss the organization of an ethno-musicological society. Those present included [24 persons—see the list below].

David McAllester opened the proceedings with a resume of the events leading to the publication of ETHNO-MUSICOLEGY [the newsletter]:

In December, 1952, he, Rhodes and Alan P. Merriam met at the 51st Annual Meeting of the American Anthropological Association in Philadelphia, and decided to attempt to reestablish communication in the field of ethno-musicology. Their discussion was continued with Charles Seeger at the Annual Meeting of the American Musicological Society in New Haven a few days later, and after consultation with other specialists in the field, a letter was sent to approximately 75 persons in the United States and abroad asking for news, bibliography, names of additional correspondents, and general suggestions. This letter was signed by [10, also listed below].

From the replies to this letter and from material at hand, the first issue of ETHNO-MUSICOLEGY was put together by Merriam, who undertook the task of editor and secretary pro tem of the publication, pending a more formal organization. Seeger, Rhodes and McAllester assisted in collecting and editing of material, and McAllester attended to the mimeographing and mailing. This informal committee of four shared the costs of printing and mailing, feeling that the Newsletter should be well-established before a membership and organization were contemplated. The immediate and steadily increasing response saw the mailing list grow from 75 to nearly 600 as the Newsletter went through five issues; it seemed that the time had come to consider formal organization.

Following this resume, Willard Rhodes took the floor and opened discussion as to whether the formation of a society was desirable, and if so what its purpose should be. The response was enthusiastically affirmative and the name “Society for Ethnomusicology” was proposed and accepted. It seemed clear from discussion that the primary concerns of the society should be the furthering of communication and the promotion of research, in as many ways as possible, in the field of ethno-musicology. After some discussion, yearly dues of $2 a year ($3 to institutional members) were approved by the group. These dues are intended to cover the cost of issuing the newsletter and to this end a further category of Sustaining Member was established for those who contribute $10 or more to the support of the publication.

E. G. Burrows presented a panel of officers which was approved as follows. President: Willard Rhodes; Vice President: Mieczyslaw Kolinski; Secretary-Treasurer: David P. McAllester; Editor: Alan P. Merriam. Provision for a panel of councillors was also established with the suggestion that it should include representation of ethnomusicologists both abroad and in the United States.

The officers were instructed to investigate the procedure of legal incorporation and to draw up a constitution to be submitted to the membership for approval.

The proper subject matter for the society was discussed at length. The general consensus favored the view that “ethno-musicology” is by no means limited to so-called “primitive music,” and is defined more by the orientation of the student than by any rigid boundaries of discourse. The danger of establishing limits was strongly expressed from the floor and this expression won general support. It was further felt that the term, “ethno-musicology” is more accurate and descriptive of this discipline and its field of investigation than the older term, “comparative musicology.”

The proposal was made and accepted that a notice of the formation of the Society be sent to the appropriate journals in music, folklore and anthropology, and the President was authorized to prepare this notice.

This concluded the business at hand, and the first meeting of the Society for Ethno-Musicology was adjourned.
B. The First Paper Session

(from Ethno-Musicology Newsletter, no. 6 [January, 1956], p. 6)

At the same meetings [1955] of the American Anthropological Association a panel of papers on ethno-musicology was presented, Friday, November 18, 1955, chaired by Bruno Nettl. The Society for Ethno-Musicology hopes to publish these papers in their entirety, along with others of general interest, in the near future. In the meantime, the following resumés have been written by the authors concerned.

In the first paper of the panel, “Toward a Definition of Ethno-Musicology,” Willard Rhodes reviewed the development of vergleichende Musikwissenschaft from its beginning to the present day. In summary he stated, “If ethno-musicology is to achieve its rightful place among the social sciences and humanities, it must emerge from its little sphere and contribute more generously of its knowledge, insight and ideas to anthropology and historical musicology.”

In the second paper, “The Determinants of Tonal Construction in Tribal Music,” Mieczyslaw Kolinski found that “the analysis of several thousands of tribal songs has disclosed that despite considerable stylistic differences between the various geographical areas, there exist universal sound psychological laws which determine their tonal construction. These laws are, however, not confined to tribal song but influence to a great extent the tonal 'construction of Western and Oriental music.'

In the third paper, “Navaho and Apache Music and Culture—A Contrast,” by David P. McAllester dealt with the facts that numerous different song forms are found in Navaho music, but Western Apache songs are nearly all in one style—closely similar to Navaho chant form. This Apache 'conservatism' contrasts with very open and relaxed behavior and attitudes connected with music. Compared to the Navahos, the Western Apaches have fewer taboos on performance, more dancing, a greater participation of women in singing, socially sanctioned drinking. This paradox in 'form and function' invites study.”

The fourth paper, “Some Concepts of African Rhythm,” by Alan P. Merriam, was not read at the conference due to the illness of the author. In the paper, however, “the four major points of view taken toward rhythm in African music were noted. These points of view, expressed by Ward, von Hornbostel, Waterman and Jones, each involve a key point; thus Ward notes one drum playing a basically unvarying beat; Hornbostel sees the organization in terms of motor behavior which is the opposite of the Western concept; Waterman postulates the concept of the metronome sense; and Jones makes the point of lack of coincidence of the main beats. Each of these concepts rests upon the author's interpretation, attribution or perception of particular psychological, motor or organizational behavior which is culturally learned.”

C. The Principal Dramatis Personae of SEM History: Eight Lists

1. The four “Fathers of the Society,” who first met in New Haven, in December, 1952, to discuss the possibility of an organization, and planned the first publication of a Newsletter

   David P. McAllester
   Alan P. Merriam
   Willard Rhodes
   Charles Seeger

2. The signers of the 1953 letter (addressed to seventy-five individuals) requesting support for a newsletter and asking for an exchange of news and information

   Manfred F. Bukofzer
   Frances Densmore
   Mieczyslaw Kolinski
   David P. McAllester
   Alan P. Merriam
   Willard Rhodes
   Curt Sachs
   Charles Seeger
   Harold Spivacke
   Richard A. Waterman
3. The participants in the meeting of November 18, 1955, in Boston, at which the Society was formally founded

Meetings
All conference sessions and meetings take place at the Sheraton Midtown Atlanta at Colony Square, Atlanta, Georgia; phone: 404-892-6000; fax: 404-876-3276

Program Supplement
Changes or additions to the program will be listed on the bulletin board in the conference registration area.

Disabled Persons
The Sheraton Colony Square complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, its regulations and guidelines. The staff will be pleased to assist persons with special needs or inquiries.

Activities Table
A variety of guides and promotional brochures will be available at the activities table, located near the registration area. Be sure to stop by!

In Case of Emergency
Dial “0” on your room phone. The Sheraton Colony Square staff is trained to assist with emergency procedures that may be necessary.

Internet Access
High speed internet access is available in guest rooms (for a charge).

Registration
On-site conference registration will be held at the Ballroom Foyer of the hotel, unless otherwise noted.

Pre-conference registration hours:
Ballroom Foyer 7:30 - 9:00 am

Conference registration hours:
Wednesday, November 16 7:30 am - 6:00 pm
Thursday, November 17 7:30 am - 6:00 pm
Friday, November 18 7:30 am - 4:00 pm
Saturday, November 19 7:30 am - 12 noon
Sunday, November 20 8:00 - 9:00 am

Saturday, November 19 8:00 am – 4:00 pm

Silent Auction
The Silent Auction is located outside the Habersham Room. Proceeds from the auction will benefit student travel to participate as presenters in future SEM meetings. The auction is open during book exhibit hours. The end of the auction coincides with the closing of the book exhibit on Saturday afternoon at 4:00 pm. Items you win must be paid for and retrieved on Saturday between 4:00 pm and 6:30 pm. The development committee is unable to accept credit cards, but will accept cash and checks. They are unable to mail sold items. Join in the fun and friendly competition for a worthwhile aim of supporting the professional development of our student members and future colleagues.

Seeger Prize Papers
Student presenters who wish to have their papers considered for the Charles Seeger Prize must leave four copies in the box at the SEM table in the book exhibit, along with a completed application form. Guidelines for submission are posted on the SEM website.

Business Center
The Sheraton Colony Square offers a full-service business center, located on the property. Check the front desk for service hours.

First-Time Attendees/New Member “Host” Program
First-time attendees, students, or foreign visitors attending the meeting who would like to have a veteran SEM host get you started at the conference, please plan to attend the welcome reception in Grand Ballroom South, on Thursday evening. Participants will meet prior to the reception in the Upper Ballroom Foyer at approximately 5:00 pm.

Job Interviews
Interview times and sign-ups are posted on the bulletin board at the registration desk. The SEM Board of Directors discourages interviews from being conducted in sleeping rooms.
WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 2005
Pre-Conference Symposium

ATLANTA, 8:30 am – 5:30 pm

Race & Place: Invoking New Music Identities

This symposium features lecture presentations by Dwight Andrews (music, Emory University) on jazz and spirituality, Peter Brown (anthropology, Emory University) on healing and the social body, Marva Carter (music, Georgia State University) on early twentieth-century African American Broadway theater, Jonathan Dueck (music, University of Maryland at College Park) on shape-note singing in the South, Jean Ngoya Kidula (music, University of Georgia at Athens) on gospel music and race in the South, Bobbi Patterson (religion, Emory University) on music and intercultural understanding in an international school in Atlanta, Brett Pyper (music, New York University) on jazz and race in South Africa, Dianne Stewart (religion, Emory University) on the theology of the body in nineteenth-century African American religious expressions, and also presentations by Regula Qureshi (music, University of Alberta), Kay Kaufman Shelemay (music, Harvard University), and Deborah Wong (music, University of California at Riverside). After the lunch hour Thomasina Neely-Chandler (Atlanta) will present a lecture-performance on the music and worship practices of the Church of God in Christ in Grand Ballroom South.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 2005
Concert: Creative Processes of Korean Music

GRAND BALLROOM NORTH, 8:00 – 10:00 pm

This concert will feature both traditional music and contemporary development of Korean music in the last fifty years through a wide range of repertory from sanjo to computer-generated music. The six specially invited performers are Hwang Byungki (gayageum, 12-stringed zither), Ji Aeri (12- and 25-stringed gayageum), Moon Hyun (sijo, poetic song), Kim Jeongseung (daegeum, large bamboo flute), Kim Woongsik (jango, hourglass drum), and Jo Jeonghee (pansori, narrative sung-drama). Renowned photographer Koo Bohnchang, whose prolific output includes still photos used as cover posters for such well-known Korean films as Seopeonje and Chunhyang, as well as photographs of Korean mask dancers, will provide live interactive visual imagery for the concert.

Organized by Emory University’s Department of Music and co-sponsored by the Center for Teaching and Curriculum, Hightower Fund, Institute for Comparative and International Studies, Institute of Liberal Arts, and the Program in Culture, History, and Theory.

Major funding by the Asian Cultural Council, The Korean Culture and Arts Foundation, and Ministry of Culture and Tourism (Korea), with additional sponsorship from Emory University’s Department of Music, Department of Russian and East Asian Languages and Cultures, Program for Asian Studies, Program for East Asian Studies, and Gugak FM, Korean Consulate General in Atlanta, The Korea Foundation, The Korean National University of Arts, The National Center for Korean Traditional Performing Arts, and National Phonograph Record Museum of Korea.

Concert: Gullah Music Performed by the Georgia Sea Islands Singers
(Buses will start loading at 6:30 p.m. We encourage participants to board early to assure timely arrival for the concert. Buses will be parked at the intersection of 14th and Juniper Streets, across from the hotel.)

Donna and Marvin Schwartz Center for Performing Arts, EMORY UNIVERSITY
8:00 – 10:00 pm

Discover the coastal Georgia Gullah heritage of the Golden Isles through song as Frankie Sullivan Quimby and Douglas Quimby sing in English, African, and Gullah dialect. Audience participation, clapping, and Doug's lightning quick hands that turn his body into a musical instrument are highlights along with the escape songs, call-and-response songs, sea chanties, shouts, and lyrics containing coded messages once used by slaves. Treasures of Georgia, the Quimbys have performed for heads of state and at major world events, including multiple Olympic Games.

Tickets underwritten by Emory University’s Department of Music, with additional sponsorship from American Studies, Center for the Study of Public Scholarship, Department of Anthropology Speakers Fund Series, Institute for African Studies, and Program for African American Studies. Transportation will be provided.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 2005
Contemporary Javanese Shadow Puppet Theater: KAM, an Interactive Shadow Play
ATLANTA
9:30 pm – 12:00 midnight

KAM is based on the sixteenth-century Javanese legend of Ki Ageng Mangir and the modern play Mangir by Pramoedya Ananta Toer. Performed by the Emory Gamelan Ensemble and guest musicians from SEM, with Midiyanto, University of California at Berkeley, as dhalang. Music and design by Steven Everett, Emory University. In combining traditional Javanese and contemporary Western art forms, KAM explores the cyclical nature of current and past sociopolitical dynamics in Indonesia through a traditional wayang kulit form. KAM provides a modern glimpse into this intriguing episode in Javanese history. Movement, shadow puppets, and music are able to interact with the use of several computer-based audio and video programs. Original shadow puppets of the characters in the play have been created in Java for this production. The story is spoken and sung by Midiyanto in English, Bahasa Indonesia, and Javanese. This event is free for SEM conference participants.
Lost Lineages and Neglected Peers: Ethnomusicologists outside Academia

Anthony Seeger, Professor of Ethnomusicology, University of California at Los Angeles

Many academic disciplines create an intellectual lineage from early figures whose research questions or authoritative publications establish the legitimacy of their distinctive disciplinary identity. These lineages are established and transmitted through teaching, citations, and publications. Like most genealogies, that of ethnomusicology displays a degree of “genealogical amnesia” with respect to certain figures who do not fit the ambitions of a discipline seeking to establish itself as legitimate within the institutional framework of the twentieth century university. Since we are celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of SEM, and as I am giving a lecture named after my grandfather Charles, I take this occasion to examine our lineages and to discuss the significance of ethnomusicologists whose most important contributions may have been made outside academia, including those of Charles Seeger.

Anthony Seeger, Professor of Ethnomusicology at the University of California at Los Angeles and Director Emeritus of Smithsonian Folkways Recordings, will present the Charles Seeger Lecture at the fiftieth annual Society for Ethnomusicology meeting in Atlanta. Known for his fieldwork and publications on the Suyá Indians of northern Mato Grosso, Brazil, Professor Seeger was also instrumental in absorbing the Ethnic Folkways recording label into Smithsonian Folkways Recordings, which became, under his directorship, one of the premier labels for ethnomusicological recordings. His Seeger Lecture, “Lost Lineages and Neglected Peers: Ethnomusicologists outside Academia,” draws on a sensitivity toward applied ethnomusicology honed both through his involvement with an Amazonian tribe fighting for its land, resources, and cultural heritage, and with issues of intellectual property rights in his efforts on behalf of artists from around the world represented on the Smithsonian Folkways Recordings label.

As we review our history and examine our lineages during this year’s celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of SEM, it is particularly fitting that Anthony Seeger gives the lecture named after his grandfather Charles, whose work, like that of his grandson Anthony, has had far-reaching effects within and outside of academia. Charles Seeger gave SEM’s first Distinguished Lecture in 1976, which was renamed the Charles Seeger Lecture in 1983, following his death in 1979. Like his grandfather before him, who served as President of SEM in 1960 and 1961, Anthony Seeger served as President of SEM from 1991 to 1993, as President of the International Council for Traditional Music (ICTM) from 1997 to 1999, and as Secretary-General of ICTM from 2001 to the present. Both grandfather and grandson have made significant contributions to ethnomusicological theory and method, and served their academic societies as well as society at large.

Born in New York City on May 29, 1945, and raised within the musically and politically active extended Seeger family, Anthony Seeger received his Ph.D. in anthropology from the University of Chicago in 1974. During his predoctoral research with the Suyá (1970-73), he engaged his Suyá hosts with banjo and song, as they drew him into their ceremonial and musical world. His continued visits to the Suyá over the years, with his most recent visit in 2004, have resulted in numerous publications in English and Portuguese that speak to anthropologists, ethnomusicologists, and musicologists.
in a writing style that never shies from complex details, but recounts them in an approachable, action-packed rendering of social and ceremonial life.

His renowned book Why Suyá Sing: A Musical Anthropology of an Amazonian People, originally published in 1987 by Cambridge University Press with accompanying cassette, received the American Musicological Society’s Kinkeldey Award in October 1988, and has been issued in a revised paperback with CD by the University of Illinois Press in 2004. Why Suyá Sing, building upon the solid ethnographic foundation laid in his earlier Nature and Society in Central Brazil: The Suyá Indians of Mato Grosso (Harvard University Press, 1981), drew upon forays into ethnomusicological theory and analysis that first found expression in Seeger’s extensive and well-archived field collection of Suyá song and speech genres. These materials formed the basis for recordings (Música Indígena: A arte vocal dos Suyá, 1982) and articles (“Porque os índios Suyá cantam para as suas irmãs”) appearing first in Portuguese, and later developed as articles for the journal Ethnomusicology (1979) and McLeod and Herndon’s coedited The Ethnography of Musical Performance (Norwood Editions, 1980).

Why Suyá Sing brought together the various strands of Seeger’s anthropological and ethnomusicological lineages to present a “musical anthropology” that established aspects of social life as musical, and as created and re-created through performance. Rather than assuming a pre-existing and logically prior social and cultural matrix within which music is performed, Seeger’s description and analysis of the mouse ceremony within a cycle of ceremonial activities and a structurally orchestrated set of speech and song events presented music as a part of the very construction and interpretation of social relationships and processes.

Seeger’s methodological and analytical breakthroughs into performance-centered and musically-centered social analysis found in the 1988 version of Why Suyá Sing is matched by the Afterword of the 2004 version, which extends musical anthropology into applied ethnomusicology. Here Seeger recounts how he took knowledge originally obtained for a scholarly purpose and helped Suyá use it to benefit themselves in their battles for land, resources, and cultural integrity. This movement of ethnomusicology and ethnomusicologists “outside academia,” its historical precedents and its social consequences, is the subject of his Charles Seeger presentation at the fiftieth annual meeting of the Society for Ethnomusicology.

In 1973, and again from 1975 through 1982, Seeger taught in the Department of Anthropology and the Graduate Program in Social Anthropology of the National Museum in Rio de Janeiro, becoming Chair and Director in 1981. From 1974 to 1975, he served as Assistant Professor of Anthropology at Pomona College, returning again to the United States in 1982 to become Associate Professor, then Professor of Anthropology and Director of the Archives of Traditional Music at Indiana University, Bloomington. In 1988 he became Curator of the Folkways Collection and Director of Smithsonian Folkways Recordings in the Office of Folklife Programs at the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, DC. During this time, he became involved in research and action in the realms of the independent recording industry, rights to intellectual property, and the structure of ethnographic recordings. This work resulted in a number of international lectures, conferences, and publications on the subject of field recordings, archives, and intellectual property rights, culminating in a co-edited volume with Shubha Chaudhuri, Archives for the Future: Global Perspectives on Audiovisual Archives in the 21st Century (Calcutta: Seagull Press, 2004).

In July 2000, Anthony Seeger joined the faculty of the Department of Ethnomusicology at UCLA, where he continues to draw upon his field research, social activism, and experiences in the worlds of archiving and ethnographic recordings to help train the next generation of ethnomusicologists. He received a Guggenheim Fellowship (1995), was elected a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences (1993), and has been awarded fellowships from NEH, the Ford Foundation, NSF, SSRC, Wenner-Gren, and the Smithsonian, along with numerous other organizations and institutions. He has also received funding from the Grateful Dead’s Rex Foundation to support applied ethnomusicological work with the Suyá.

His wife, Judy, and daughters Elisa and Hiléia have joined him in his field research among the Suyá. While his students and wide-ranging readership may not have visited the Suyá, they have been brought into their world of euphoric song and the ongoing drama of indigenous rights and intellectual property rights issues through Seeger’s teaching, mentorship, and publications. Those attending the fiftieth annual meeting of the Society of Ethnomusicology will have the opportunity to reflect with him upon the often-neglected history and future role of ethnomusicologists outside academia.

Concert: Creative Processes of Korean Music, 8:00 – 10:00 pm

This concert will feature both traditional music and contemporary development of Korean music in the last fifty years through a wide range of repertory from sanjo to computer-generated music. The six specially invited performers are Hwang Byungki (gayageum, 12-stringed zither), Ji Aeri (12- and 25-stringed gayageum), Moon Hyun (sijo, poetic song), Kim Jeongseung (daegeum, large bamboo flute), Kim Woongsik (jango, hourglass drum), and Jo Jeonghee (pansori, narrative sung-drama). Renowned photographer Koo Bohnchang, whose prolific output includes still photos used as cover posters for such well-known Korean films as Seopeonje and Chunhyang, as well as photographs of Korean mask dancers, will provide live interactive visual imagery for the concert.

Funding is provided by the Ministry of Culture and Tourism (Korea), Foundation for Cultural Exchange (Korea), Korea Foundation (Korea), and Asian Council for Arts (USA), with additional sponsorship from the Program for Asian Studies, Department of Music, Department of Russian and East Asian Languages and Cultures, and the Institute of Liberal Arts at Emory University.

EMORY UNIVERSITY
Donna and Marvin Schwartz Center for Performing Arts
Concert: Gullah Music Performed by the Georgia Sea Island Singers 8:00 – 10:00 pm
(Buses will start loading at 6:30 p.m. We encourage participants to board early to assure timely arrival for the concert. Buses will be parked at the intersection of 14th and Juniper Streets, across from the hotel.)

Discover the coastal Georgia Gullah heritage of the Golden Isles through song as Frankie Sullivan Quimby and Douglas Quimby sing in English, African, and Gullah dialect. Audience participation, clapping, and Doug’s lightning quick hands that turn his body into a musical instrument are highlights along with the escape songs, call-and-response songs, sea chanties, shouts, and lyrics containing coded messages once used by slaves. Treasures of Georgia, the Quimbys have performed for heads of state and at major world events, including multiple Olympic Games.

Tickets underwritten by the Department of Music at Emory University, with additional sponsorship from the Center for the Study of Public Scholarship, Department of Anthropology Speakers Fund Series, Institute for African Studies, Institute of Liberal Arts, and Program for African American Studies at Emory University. Transportation will be provided.

ATLANTA
Contemporary Javanese Shadow Puppet Theater: KAM, an Interactive Shadow Play
9:30 pm–12:00 midnight
KAM is based on the sixteenth-century Javanese legend of Ki Ageng Mangir and the modern play Mangir by Pramoedya Ananta Toer. Performed by the Emory Gamelan Ensemble and guest musicians from SEM, with Midiyanto, University of California at Berkeley, as dhalang. Music and design by Steven Everett, Emory University. In combining traditional Javanese and contemporary Western art forms, KAM explores the cyclical nature of current and past sociopolitical dynamics in Indonesia through a traditional wayang kulit form. KAM provides a modern glimpse into this intriguing episode in Javanese history. Movement, shadow puppets, and music are able to interact with the use of several computer-based audio and video programs. Original shadow puppets of the characters in the play have been created in Java for this production. The story is spoken and sung by Midiyanto in English, Bahasa Indonesia, and Javanese. This event is free for SEM conference participants.
