NEWS FROM THE AMERICAN STUDIES FACULTY

As of July 1, 1981, CHRISTOPH LOHMANN resigned from his position of Director of the American Studies Program to become Associate Dean of the Faculties. Dr. Lohmann intends to continue his association with American Studies. He will be connected with the Patten Lecture Series and with the Horizons for Knowledge Program. Dr. Lohmann is finishing his edition of Howell's letters. Volume 4 of the projected 6-volume set was published in July. He is also revising a paper on E. L. Doctorow which will appear in The Contemporary American Novel, co-edited by Albert Wertheim of IU's English Department, (New York: Adler Foreign Books, to be published in 1982). This is a joint enterprise between German and American scholars. Adler is a division of Huebner Verlag, a German publishing firm.

The new director of the American Studies Program is STEPHEN J. STEIN. Dr. Stein has been associated with the Department of Religious Studies at IU since 1970. His area of interest is eighteenth century religious life and thought in America. He is editor of a volume Apocalyptic Writings in The Works of Jonathan Edwards and is at work on an additional volume of Edwards' Biblical writings. His recently-completed article, "Retrospection and Introspection: The Gospel According to Mary Baker Eddy," [a study of her autobiography] has been accepted for publication in the Harvard Theological Review.

Dr. Stein sees the American Studies Program review as his top priority this year. It will be "an occasion to examine what the program has been and to consider new directions. The latter concern is appropriate at a time when we have a new administrator on the College of Arts and Sciences." He looks forward to graduate student involvement in the review process and in other aspects of the program. Dr. Stein would like to know each student in the program personally and invites students to drop into his office in Ballantine Hall 421.

SARAH BURNS, Art History, is investigating American artist, George Fuller. Her article, "A Study of the Life and the Poetic Vision of George Fuller, 1822-1884," will be published in the Autumn, 1981 issue of American Art Journal. Next step in Dr. Burns' research is a trip to Deerfield, Massachusetts to examine important documents.

D'ANN CAMPBELL, Women's Studies, reminds us that she is on the Executive Board of the American Studies Association. The Board will meet at the national meeting in Memphis. If you have any issues that you would like brought before the board, please contact Dr. Campbell in "memorial Hall East."
ROBERT GUNDERSON, Speech Communications, spoke at the May banquet of Phi Alpha Theta, a history honor society which met at Western Kentucky University in Lexington. The topic of Dr. Gunderson's speech was "Digging Up Parson Weems." The lecture will be published in the September 1, 1981 issue of Vital Speeches.

GEORGE JUERGENS, History, is on leave this year on a Rockefeller Foundation grant to continue his investigations on the White House press corps. Dr. Juergen's book The White House Press Corps During the Taft and Wilson Administrations will be published in December by University of Chicago Press.

CYNTHIA KINNARD, English, is interested in quilters in the Bloomington area. Dr. Kinnard has presented several lectures on women quilters, to local groups including The Quilters' Guild in Bloomington and the Bartholomew County Library. Her article, co-authored with Jean Robinson, "'It Applies to Me Directly'--Introducing Students to Women's Studies," is published in the most recent issue of Radical Teacher.

WALTER MESERVE, Theatre & Drama, is continuing his work on the second volume of the History of American Drama. This has been Dr. Meserv's on-going project for the past four years. His recent article, "State of Research in American Theatre" will be in the fall issue of Theatre Survey. Dr. Meserve is also a contributor to the Dictionary of Literary Biography (volume 1 of 2 volumes, A-J.), published this year. His entry is about American playwright and theatre producer, David Balasco (1859-1931).

LEWIS PERRY, History has received a Guggenheim Fellowship. Beginning in May, 1982, Dr. Perry will devote one year to the study of "Emotions in American Culture." The investigation will culminate in a book on that topic.

SANDRA K. D. STAHL, Folklore, will be teaching American Folk Style in Spring, 1982. The course is cross-listed with American Studies. Dr. Stahl will lecture on the interpretation of personal narratives at the American Folklore Society's annual meeting in San Antonio this November.

If you've recently moved . . .
Please give your current address to Nancy in the American Studies Office.

AMERICAN STUDIES EVENINGS

Thanks to Peter Timmann the American Studies evenings which everyone enjoys will continue this year. Peter has arranged an interesting program for us. Please mark the following dates on your calendar.

October 18  Phyllis Katzman and William Harris will speak about the Harlem Renaissance. Location to be announced.

November 8  Dillon Bustin will show his film "Potoka Valley Boys." Location to be announced.

Second semester speakers include Lewis Perry and Lester Cohen. These evenings have always been a wonderful opportunity to see and hear the work in progress of a variety of scholars and to exchange ideas with them.

CONTRIBUTORS

All American Studies faculty and students are considered potential contributors to the Newsletter. Please keep us informed about yourself, your lectures, publications, awards; any upcoming events which you feel would be of interest to us; any new publications or films which you consider important to those with an interest in American culture. Nancy keeps a folder in her office where you can leave information.
CONFERENCES

Ride sign-up sheets for conferences are posted on the bulletin board in front of the American Studies Office.

October 2-3, 1981 Fall Conference of Ohio-Indiana and Michigan Chapters of the ASA. Topic: "Modernization, Industrialization and American Culture." Place: Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio. Former Program member, John Moe will chair a panel on "Folklore Responses to Social Change and Modernization." Program member Sandy Rikoon will discuss "The Custom Thresherman as Technological Agent in the Midwest" as part of a panel on "Rural Industrialization."

October 8-10 Female Sphere Conference. Topic: "The Dynamics of Women Together in 19th Century America." Place: New Harmony, Indiana. Many IU faculty members and students are participating in this conference. The program boasts a large number of speakers. New Harmony is about two hours from Bloomington.

October 29-November 1, 1981 American Studies Association Convention. Topic: Region in American Culture. Place: Rivermont Hotel, Memphis, Tennessee. Many familiar faces from IU's American Studies Program will be there. Lectures, films, tours, job placement, publishers' displays, don't miss it!

Anyone seeking a ride or riders to the American Studies Association convention in Memphis, please contact Peter Timmann.

November 13-14 Winterthur Conference on The Colonial Revival in America. Place: Winterthur, Delaware (near Wilmington). Scholars from a variety of disciplines discuss the cultural implications of this late-nineteenth century phenomenon.

The next qualifying examination in American Studies will be January 7, 1982. If you plan to take this exam, please sign up with Nancy May by December 14, 1981.

AMERICAN STUDIES PROGRAM REVIEW

During this 1981-82 academic year, the American Studies Program will be reviewed by the College of Arts and Sciences. Every department and program in the college undergoes a review periodically. It consists of a systematic evaluation of all aspects of the program, the faculty, the students, and the courses. Reviewers from within the university and from comparable programs at other universities will examine program's policies, interview faculty and students individually, and even attend classes. We are fortunate that such a review process exists because it affords an opportunity for interaction with colleagues on a level that is not usually reached during casual encounters or professional meetings. The review schedule takes an entire year to complete. At this writing, we are in the earliest stages of the process. The American Studies Committee met on Friday, September 18 and drew up a tentative list of qualified scholars who might be asked to perform the external audit. Watch this column for further news.
IN MEMORIAM

The Folklore and History Departments and the American Studies Program lost a valuable colleague when Richard M. Dorson died on September 11, 1981. A noted folklorist, Dr. Dorson had served all three academic areas during his twenty-four-year career at IU. He took his Ph.D. in American Civilization at Harvard University in 1946 where he studied with Perry Miller. He taught at Harvard and at Michigan State University before he came to Bloomington. During his long career, Dr. Dorson published over 24 books and 200 articles in refereed or commissioned publications. He received nearly every award given to a humanist, including three Guggenheim fellowships. As an American historian, he brought a unique perspective to folklore, a field dominated by anthropologists and literary scholars. His major contribution to scholarship was earning the recognition of folklore as a separate academic discipline in America. He achieved this by publishing numerous annotated editions of folklore collections, training the majority of folklorists who hold doctorates in this field, establishing professional societies and journals, and insisting on high standards of excellence in the classroom, in fieldwork, and in publications. Those who were privileged to know Dr. Dorson will always remember his unbounded energy and enthusiasm for his work.
A MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR:

The rapid approach of the end of 1981 makes this an appropriate moment to share some observations on this past semester, a semester which has seen a change in the director of the American Studies Program and the beginnings of a program review.

Let me begin by affirming my personal pleasure with the spirit of cooperation that has characterized my relationships with students and faculty alike during the past three months. I am grateful for the willingness of all to assist during this time of transition.

The program review is well underway. It is expected that during the second semester students and faculty alike will have occasion to talk to the members of the internal and external review committees. The review process provides for a moment for self-reflection. It is an occasion to look both at the past and to the future. I am confident that the American Studies Program will emerge from this process strengthened and eager for consolidation, expansion, and innovation.

You will be interested to know that we have received responses to our questionnaire from many current students and also from many alumni. These replies have been both constructive and heartening. Many good suggestions have been made about the program, and a great deal of evidence was received to document the positive impact of American Studies at IU on the careers of its former students. It is also heartening to discover the range of professional locations in which graduates of the program find themselves, from traditional academic positions at colleges and universities throughout the country to locations in local, state, and national agencies and governmental positions. One graduate has even served for a time as a White House aide.

It may also be of interest to note that the American Studies Program has become party to a five-year agreement signed by President John Ryan with officials of Zagreb University in Yugoslavia. Over the next five years the program here will assist in running at least one American Studies seminar per year at the Center for International Studies at Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia. In turn, persons from Yugoslavia will come to Indiana University to aid and benefit from the Slavics Program at IU. This agreement offers the American Studies Program an exciting opportunity to affect the course of American Studies in Yugoslavia.

Finally, I am pleased to announce the expansion of the American Studies faculty. The following persons have indicated their willingness to serve in the program.

SUCCESS STORIES: IS THERE LIFE AFTER GRADUATE SCHOOL?

Doris Fanelli, former American Studies assistant and editor of the last newsletter, can attest to it. On December 1, she became Director of the Drexel University Museum Collection, which features nineteenth-century American paintings and furniture, Chinese ceramics, documentary photographs, the Drexel family memorabilia and assorted textiles and graphics. In addition to her administrative duties, Doris works with faculty in developing exhibits as well as offering gallery lectures for interested classes. In January, Doris will present an exhibition on traditional "food ways," a program combining the talents and perspectives of many scholars in the field of nutrition. She continues to work on her dissertation "Stone Men: The Home-Made Arts of Indiana Limestone Workers."

On December 4, Lotfi Ben Rejeb defended his dissertation, "'To the Shores of Tripoli': The Impact of Barbary on Early American Nationalism." Congratulations, Lotfi!

Help! You too can be a roving reporter -- send us news of your work, plans, and accomplishments. It's not only interesting, it can also be helpful to our program.

UPCOMING QUALIFYING EXAMS: JANUARY 7 AND MAY 6, 1982

Please inform Nancy May in the American Studies office two weeks before you plan to take the exam and provide her with a list of your American Studies courses, a brief statement about your dissertation project (actual or envisioned), and a list of major American Studies secondary texts with which you are familiar (somewhere between 12 and 25 titles).

GOINGS ON

The annual meeting of the American Culture Association will take place April 14–18, 1982 at the Galt House Hotel in Louisville, Kentucky. Participants must pre-register ($20, non refundable). For information, write David Wright, Department of English, Michigan State University, East Lansing, MI 48824.

On December 8, the American Studies Program hosted a brown bag luncheon featuring David Brion Davis, Sterling Professor of History at Yale University. Serving as a kind of "moving target" for him, Dirk Hartog of the Law School initiated the informal, wide ranging discussion by praising Professor Davis's historical studies of slavery and drawing parallels between the abolition movement and developments in American and British property law during the nineteenth-century. The conversation proved interesting and interdisciplinary, ranging from anthropology to the intricacies of contract law, from the perogatives of the Roman pater familias to the Married Woman's Property Act, from James Fenimore Cooper's New York to Jamaican sugar plantations.

Professor Davis is best known for The Problem of Slavery in Western Culture (1967) and The Problem of Slavery in the Age of Revolution, 1770–1823 (1977). These two works have received such recognition as the Pulitzer Prize, the Bancroft Prize, and the National Book Award. On December 7 and 9, Professor Davis also presented two Patten Foundation lectures on "Slavery and Human Progress."

PEOPLE'S CHOICE

One of the most direct ways of participating in the American Studies Program is by voting for the student members on the American Studies Committee. They reflect student views on issues of importance to the program as well as planning activities and events (American Studies Evenings, social events and special presentations). So tear off the ballot below, vote for two people and drop it off at the American Studies office or in campus mail. It's the American Way!

NEWS FROM THE AMERICAN STUDIES FACULTY

JOHN BODNAR, History, has recently co-authored Lives of Their Own: Blacks, Italians, and Poles in Pittsburgh 1800-1960. This book deals with various strategies that families adopted to adjust to a new industrial city. Oral interviews and quantitative data were used extensively in this book.

Presently, Dr. Bodnar is working on "Family Economy of Industrial Workers: Mental Illness of Working Class Families, The Coal Miner's Family Prior to World War II."

WILLIAM HARRIS, History and Director of CIC Minorities Fellowship Program, is primarily concerned with working class history since the civil war, although he is presently teaching a colloquium on slavery in the Americas. Dr. Harris' book The Harder We Run: Black Workers Since the Civil War came out this year, and in 1981 Labor History published his article "Federal Intervention in Union Discrimination: FEPC and West Coast Shipyards During World War II" in their Summer 1981 issue.

RAY HEDIN, English, at the moment is working on a book concerning the Black American narrative tradition. He has had several articles published on this same subject in the following journals: American Literature, Cleo, Callaloo, and the Southern Literary Journal. Dr. Hedin currently teaches a graduate course in the English department L680 examining the relationship between 19th-century slave narratives and 20th-century black fiction. Dr. Hedin is also interested in problems of teaching, having published articles in College English and the Chronicle of Higher Education. A forthcoming article "White Teachers-Black Literature" will appear in SEA Critic.

PHYLLIS KLOTMAN, Afro-American Studies, is currently Director of the "Black Film Center-Archives" which is partially funded by the Lilly Endowment. Dr. Klotman is also working on a grant from the Indiana Committee for the Humanities - "Black Film Outreach Project." (discussed later in this Newsletter)

PAUL LUCAS, History, published his book on Colonial Connecticut Valley of Discord: Church and Society Along the Connecticut River, 1636-1785 in 1976. Dr. Lucas is putting the finishing touches to a broad synthetic study of early America, American Odyssey 1607-1869. He is also interested in anti-Catholicism in the colonial period. This semester Dr. Lucas is teaching a graduate colloquium on the colonial period.

BARRY SELTSER, Religious Studies, is primarily interested in questions of social ethics, particularly the ethics of organizational life and the impact of religion on ethics. His research includes an examination of political ethics in the U.S. Senate, and he is beginning work on projects in the areas of sociological theory and political theology.

Dr. Seltser's teaching revolves around similar questions. He is teaching a large 100 level course on Religion and Social Issues, and an upper-level course on Organizational Ethics.

FACULTY PUBLICATIONS

This volume contains essays, all in English, on Arthur Miller, Tennessee Williams, Edward Albee, David Rabe, LeRoy Jones, Arthur Kopit, Ed Bullins, Lorraine Hansberry, David Mamet, Luis Valdez, Ronald Ribman, and Sam Shepard. There are also separate essays on Black drama of the 1970s, Women's drama, and Chicano drama as well as an annotated bibliography of primary and secondary materials. The essay on Arthur Miller is by Albert Wertheim (English department) and the one on Black drama by Winona Fletcher (Theatre and Drama and Afro-American Studies).

TAKING THE "BULL" BY THE HORNS

Within the very first month of 1982 the American Studies Program has started off in a bigger and better way. We now have a "quintet" called the American Studies Graduate Council. This council was set up in place of elected representatives. If you have any concerns, complaints, or suggestions regarding American Studies please contact one of the following people:

Sheila Culbert 336-5270
John Erwin 829-4470
Patricia Patrick 335-9815, 339-9397
Marcia Press 336-4314
Peter Timmann 339-6896

The next meeting of the American Studies Graduate Council is Tuesday, February 23, at 12:30, Collins, The Living & Learning Center. All are welcome to come and participate in these informal discussions.

AMERICAN STUDIES ESSAY CONTEST

The second annual American Studies Prize will be awarded this spring, thanks to the continuing support of the College of Arts and Sciences--Graduate School Alumni Association. A Prize of $100 will be given to the graduate student essay that best exemplifies the interdisciplinary study of American culture. Papers should not exceed 25 pages (tables and other necessary items may be in addition), must be typed according to accepted scholarly conventions, and are to be submitted to the American Studies office with an endorsement from an IU faculty member by March 19, 1982.

The decision in the competition will be made by a subcommittee of the American Studies faculty. Public announcement of the selection will be made in mid-April.

The department of AFRO-AMERICAN STUDIES announces the W.E.B. Dubois Writing Awards, with prizes of $200 for both the graduate and undergraduate winners. Research papers, of no more than 25 pages, may be on any area of Afro-American Studies. The submitted copy must be typed, double-spaced with no comments. The author's name should not appear on any page, and the author should retain a copy of the paper. A cover sheet must include the author's name, address, telephone number, major and class standing. Submit papers by February 26, 1982 to Professor John McCluskey, Jr., Department of Afro-American Studies, Memorial Hall.

Graduate Assistantships in Residence Halls: Approximately 40 resident assistant positions will be available in the Residence Halls, mostly in undergraduate dorms, for 1982-83. In addition to receiving a single room and board, RAS receive a stipend of $670. for the year. Fee remissions are also available if the RAS assume additional leadership roles within the Department of Residence Life.
CALL FOR PAPERS

The third Folklore Student Papers Conference will be held at Indiana University, Bloomington, the weekend of May 7-9, 1982 (tentative), hosted by the Folklore Students Association. We are looking for 20-minute presentations, 8-10 pages double spaced, on topics of Regionalism, particularly in American folklore. Subject matter may concern notions of regionalism such as: folklore of a specific region, urban folklore, rural folklore, folklore of a given ethnic group or occupation, material culture or folklife, folk dance, etc. Complete panel entries (e.g., four papers on same region, occupation, etc.) are welcome.

Papers of publication quality are desired as we would like to publish the proceedings. Please submit abstracts by March 1, 1982 to: Student Papers Conference, c/o Folklore Students Association, 506 North Fess, Bloomington, IN 47405.

JOB ANNOUNCEMENTS

LIVING AND LEARNING CENTER PROPOSALS: Collins LLC has an experimental curriculum which provides an opportunity for faculty and advanced graduate students to teach courses dealing with topics which are not dealt with in regular University courses, and to use innovative teaching methods. Proposals are being solicited for Fall Semester 1982. The deadline is March 1, 1982. Please contact Patricia Patrick (335-1939 or 339-9397) if you are interested. There is a stipend.

THE WOMEN'S STUDIES PROGRAM is accepting applications for two graduate assistant instructors to assist in teaching the general introductory Women's Studies course in the fall of 1982. The course, W201-Women in American Society, focuses on an introduction to the history, literature, socialization and psychology of American women. Since this is an interdisciplinary course we encourage students from a broad range of fields to apply. Applicants must have experience in teaching and a strong background in women's studies. Preference will be given to students earning a Ph.D. minor in Women's Studies, but all qualified students are urged to apply. The stipend for the one-semester course will be approximately $2000 and a fee remission. There is a possibility that second semester teaching will be available (decision is pending notification of budget for 1982-83).

THE WOMEN'S STUDIES PROGRAM is also accepting applications for one or two graduate assistants who will develop bibliographies for the Program, assist faculty in course development and research, and edit our bi-monthly newsletter, Women's Studies in Indiana. Applicants must have experience in minors, but all students are urged to apply. Previous editing and writing experience is desirable; facility with computer operations and/or library cataloging is preferred but not required. The positions will be year-long, 10-12 hours per week, with a stipend of approximately $2000 for the year and a $2000 fee remission.

Further information is available from the Women's Studies Office.

Plan now to attend--A Workshop on "CAREERS FOR HUMANISTS."

In these days of bleak landscapes on the academic horizon, dispirited grad students in the last stages of desperation, hallways haunted with memories of the perfect Assistant Prof.
who did not get tenure, we should be reminded that virtually all Ph.D.'s in the Humanities are still able to find jobs. To spread the word about the opportunities, the Graduate School is putting together an attractive conference on "Careers for Humanists," to be held on Saturday, April 10, 1982.

The focus of the conference will be non-academic career opportunities, although the academic job situation also will be a topic of discussion. Panel leaders will include Humanities Ph.D.'s currently employed in positions with private industry (small companies as well as large corporations), non-profit organizations, state or federal agencies, and perhaps college administration.

More information will be forthcoming.
THE BLACK FILM OUTREACH PROJECT directed by Phyllis R. Klotman, has available, free of charge, a series of programs approximately two hours long including a Black film, introductory remarks and a discussion after the screening.

The following list provides a sample of films available:

Black Shadows on a Silver Screen
The St. Louis Blues
The Scar of Shanle (1927)
The Emperor Jones (1933)
God's Stepchildren (1937)
The Blood of Jesus (1941)

AMERICAN STUDIES EVENING RESCHEDULED BECAUSE OF SNOWSTORM

On Sunday evening, March 7, at 7:30, Professor Lester H. Cohen will present and discuss a paper entitled "Mercy Otis Warren: The Politics of Language and the Aesthetics of Self." Professor Cohen is Professor of History and American Studies at Purdue University. He is the author of The Revolutionary Histories: Contemporary Narratives of the American Revolution and of numerous scholarly articles. His paper deals with Warren's growing self-consciousness as a feminist and political theorist. This gathering will be held at the home of Elizabeth and Lewis Perry (1212 Pickwick Place) and is open to all.

COLLOQUIUM SERIES

The Comparative politics Working Group, Department of Political Science, will host an informal colloquium series during the spring semester, 1982. These sessions are intended to present faculty members' current research on a variety of topics and encourage discussion in the general area of comparative politics.

The first presentation in this series is scheduled for Friday, February 12, 1:30-3:00 p.m. (Woodburn Hall 218). Professor Norman Furniss will speak on the subject of "Possible Worlds and the New Order of Functioning." This work examines alternative policy patterns in welfare states in Western Europe and the United States.

AMERICAN STUDIES SEMINARS GROUP

The new American Studies Graduate Council is interested in getting together with other American Studies graduate students to form a regular seminar group where we could present and listen to each others work. If you are interested in either presenting a paper or participating in such a group please drop a note of response to Nancy May in the American Studies Program office. Also include in your note whether you would prefer to meet in the evening or as a brown bag lunch.

COMING SOON: American Studies Evening presentation with Professor Albert Wertheim of the English Department. On Sunday evening, February 21st, at 7:30 p.m., Professor Wertheim will read and discuss a paper entitled "HUAC, McCarthyism and the American Drama of the 1950s," Professor Wertheim was recently elected President of the Eugene O'Neill Society. This event will be held at the home of Devonia and Stephen Stein, 1420 Maxwell Lane. All are invited.
AN AMERICAN STUDIES EVENING LECTURE

On April 15 at 8:00 p.m. Professor Robert F. Berkhofer, Jr. of the University of Michigan will present a lecture entitled "The Two New Histories: 1970s Heritage, 1980s Prospects." This occasion is sponsored by the American Studies Program and is open to the public. The lecture will be given in Ballantine Hall 003.

Professor Berkhofer is Professor of American History at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. He is currently the President of the national American Studies Association. Professor Berkhofer has taught at Ohio State University, the University of Minnesota, and the University of Wisconsin. He has received a number of prestigious research grants including a Senior Fellowship from the National Endowment for the Humanities and a Guggenheim Foundation Fellowship. Berkhofer is the author of numerous publications which have dealt with American Indians, American social history, and the questions of historical theory and methodology. For example, he has authored Salvation and the Savage: An Analysis of Protestant Missions and American Indian Response, 1787-1862, A Behavioral Approach to Historical Analysis, and The White Man's Indian: Images of the American Indian From Columbus to the Present. He is currently at work on a book dealing with the conceptional foundations and implications of historical and cultural relativism.

In his presentation in Bloomington Professor Berkhofer will discuss the two so-called new histories that started in the 1960s and came to maturity in the 1970s: quantification and social science history (particularly the new social history) and the New Left or Neo-Marxian history. He will examine their presuppositions and their futures. This presentation promises to be of interest to a diverse audience because Berkhofer will be dealing with a number of recent works of importance to the field of American Studies.

A reception will follow the presentation.

AN ADVANCE WELCOME TO AN INCOMING STUDENT

The American Studies Program is pleased to announce that the AS Fellowship for 1982–1983 has been offered to and accepted by Daniel R. Fruit. Daniel Fruit is currently completing his undergraduate training at Albion College in Michigan. He is a combined English and History major at Albion. Daniel will be pursuing the combined degree in English and American Studies. He has additional interests in anthropology, music and science fiction. We look forward to Daniel Fruit’s arrival in Bloomington in the fall!
The Lilly Library has acquired more than 12,000 letters from the estate of Ezra Pound's widow, Dorothy Shakespear Pound. The letters cover the period from 1900 to 1973 but are mostly concentrated in the period between 1946 to 1973, and include letters from a wide range of major literary figures. Accompanying the collection is the correspondence between Pound and Agnes Bedford. Lilly Librarian, William Cagle, said of the new material "It is an immensely interesting collection because there are so many uses for it. Scholars interested in the writers who wrote to the Pounds as well as those working on Pound will find it rich in information. For those in comparative literature, there are extensive correspondences concerning translation, both by Pound and of Pound, and a great deal concerning Pound's interest in music. We hope the collection will inspire a new biography of Pound, one which will present fuller information on his later years."

The Indiana University Archives of Traditional Music is conducting a survey of investigators researching traditional music and dance in the state of Indiana. If you are involved in this kind of research or plan to be in the future, we would appreciate your cooperation. We are planning a central data bank of general information, such as the traditions and ethnic groups investigated, the location of the recordings, type of music, and genres. We wish to collect information for a better idea of the current level of fieldwork and documentation of traditions in the state as a whole. Survey forms are available at 057 Maxwell Hall, Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana 47405, or by calling (812) 335-8632.

Members and friends of the former Ohio-Indiana and Michigan Chapters of the American Studies Association:
As a result of recent actions taken by the membership of the two groups we have been merged together into a new regional organization:

The Great Lakes Chapter of the American Studies Association

The result of the first election of the Great Lakes American Studies Association is as follows:

President: Guy Szuberla, Toledo University
Vice President: Park Dixon Coist, CWRU
Secretary/Treasurer: Spencer Bennett, Siena Heights College
Executive Board:
  Jan Shippes - Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis
  Robert R. Kettler - Miami University (Ohio)
  David Struss - Kalamazoo College
  Anthony Edmonds - Ball State University
  Henry Shapior - University of Cincinnati
  Christoph K. Lohmann - Indiana University, Bloomington
UP-COMING QUALIFYING EXAMINATION DATES

The dates have now been set for the next two occasions for the American Studies qualifying examination. These dates are May 6 and July 28. Students planning to take the exam on either occasion are required to submit a letter to the director at least two weeks in advance stating their intention, listing 20-25 titles in the field of American Studies with which they are familiar, and giving a brief statement of their potential dissertation topic. Questions concerning the examination process should be directed to Professor Stein.

EXTERNAL REVIEW TEAM TO VISIT CAMPUS IN MID-APRIL

The Program Review for American Studies has now reached the point when a group of visiting professors will come to campus to evaluate the program. The review team consists of three nationally-prominent scholars in the field of American Studies: Professor Paul Boyer of the University of Wisconsin, Professor Albert E. Stone of the University of Iowa, and Professor Robert F. Berkhofer, Jr., of the University of Michigan. These visitors will be on campus April 14-16. They will be interviewing faculty, students, and administrators while on campus and then subsequently writing a report of their findings.

PLAN AHEAD FOR A SPRING OUTING ON APRIL 25!

A spring American Studies picnic is being planned for Sunday afternoon, April 25. Hold the date open, and more information will be coming later in the month.

AMERICAN STUDIES COURSES OFFERED THIS FALL

G620 Colloquium in American Studies
4 cr. 3:00-5:00 p.m. Thursdays
Topic: Selected Sociological Critiques of American Religion in Society
Barry Selsaer

This course will examine some writers who have contributed to the analysis of the role of religion in contemporary American society. It will focus on the following three questions: the role of ideology in American society, the function of religion as a form of ideology, and the contributions of these writers to an understanding of the condition of modern American life.

G620 deals with one segment of the field of the sociology of religion. The student will gain some conceptual tools of analysis as well as an appreciation of the complexity and variation of religious dimensions of modern society and culture.

G751 Seminar in American Studies
4 cr. 10:30-12:30 a.m. Tuesdays
Sarah Burns

Topic: Problems in American Art: Taste in America, 1865-1900

This seminar will examine American art in the period of 1865-1900. The focus of attention will be upon the history of taste during the last portion of the nineteenth century. Specific topics will include architecture, the decorative arts, the rise of criticism, the development of patronage, and the patterns of collecting.
